

GOP Wants Proof On Treaty Effects On Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are demanding President Kennedy prove his claim that the limited nuclear test ban treaty will increase U.S. security.

The proof will be sought when military and scientific experts are questioned in hearings on the treaty, said Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

In sending the pact to the Senate Thursday, Kennedy said the ban on atmospheric, space and underwater blasts "will assure the security of the United States better than continued unlimited testing on both sides."

The United States could make further progress in its weapons program if atmospheric tests were continued, the President said, but "so would the Soviet Union and, indeed, so could other nations."

He continued in the 1,500-word message: "It should be remembered that only one atomic test was required to complete the development of the Hiroshima bomb. Clearly the security of the United States—the security of all mankind—is increased if such tests are prohibited."

Underground tests are not barred and the President has said they will be continued.

Later, talking to reporters, Dirksen said:

"I presume that the President is fully prepared, through necessary witnesses, to fortify his avowal that our security will be enhanced, instead of impaired, by the provisions of this treaty."

The treaty was signed in Moscow Thursday by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. To take effect it must be approved by two-thirds of the Senate.

In Washington, Moscow and London Thursday, officials of 34 other nations signed the pact. It

Test Treaty Points to Gap In Controls

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A member of the U.S. negotiating team says the limited nuclear test ban treaty points up a serious gap in the technology necessary for nuclear arms control: underground detonations.

They were excluded from the treaty because scientists have not found a sure way to detect and identify all subsurface blasts, Dr. Frank Press, director of the seismology laboratories of California Institute of Technology, said in an exclusive interview.

Precise information about this research is secret. Neither side wants the other to know how much progress is being made in distinguishing explosions from earthquakes.

But informed sources say this research is going ahead full speed, because a breakthrough could lead to cessation of all nuclear weapons testing.

"The treaty signed in Moscow is a good first step, but I doubt if anyone would deny there is need for a more comprehensive treaty," said Dr. Press, a technical member of the U.S. negotiating team.

"Science has made some very significant advances in the field in the past five years, but we are all looking forward to the day when underground tests, too, can

Judge Approves Plan To End Segregation

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge Luther Bohanon approved Thursday a plan drawn up by the Oklahoma City School Board to end segregation in the city's public schools.

Judge Bohanon ordered the board on July 11 to change its policy of student transfers and to hire Negro teachers.

E. Melvin Porter, president of the Oklahoma City chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, criticized the board's plan to add five Negro teachers this fall. Porter said there should be many more.

AREA NATIONAL GUARDSMEN ended their two weeks of summer field training today and are enroute home with most expected to arrive home Sunday. This series of pictures, especially arranged for by The Democrat-Capital, shows some of the troops' activities while in

IN THE BRUSH—PFC Joe Chmiele, Cole Camp, was in the thick of things with his field switchboard when this picture was snapped.

OBSERVE FIRING — Capt. Leroy Iuchs, standing with field glasses, observes firing from observation point with other members of the guard unit.

GUN CREW—"Fire," no doubt is the cry of Sgt. J. D. Fry (left), Ottumwa. Others are Pvt. James Von Holten, LaMonte; PFC S. K. Walker, Houstonia; PFC Charles Kedigh, Ulrich; Sgt. Bob Bennett, Independence; and SP4 James Mulvey, Ottumwa.

Record Loss In Mail 'Job'

$8.4 Million Estimated British Robbery Haul

LONDON (AP)—Known losses in history's greatest train robbery approached the $7 million mark today. Scotland Yard and police of 14 counties hunted the gang that ambushed the Glasgow-London mail train.

As bank after bank reported on the cash shipments seized by bandits at a rural junction Thursday, the total climbed to 2,472,000 pounds ($6,921,000).

Right of Way Acquisition Near On Ohio

Urban Plan Work To Link Downtown With North 65

Acquisition of right of way along Ohio avenue north from Main street to North Highway 65, is expected to begin in the near future, the Missouri Highway Department told The Democrat-Capital today. The new route will connect with the new portion of Highway 65 currently in construction.

Construction on the new route, which is part of the Urban Plan, between Broadway and North 65 is expected to be completed in December, Highway Department officials said.

Asked about improvements along Route 65 north from Sedalia to Marshall Junction, the department said some acquisition of land is planned in the current fiscal year. One particular area pinpointed is a 6.3 miles stretch of road starting 7.4 miles south of the Saline County line and stretching south to Route HH, which is a short distance north of the current improvements on Route 65.

The latter work would, maps indicate, start near Route J and would take in the majority of the winding roadway between Sedalia and Marshall Junction. This area has been described as "one of the worst stretches of road in the entire state on a major highway" carrying the traffic this route normally carries.

Another short project listed by the department includes 0.6 mile improvements over West Main street from Prospect to a junction with the present project under construction at the Limit avenue intersection and overpass.

Butts Denies Knowledge Of Gambling

ATLANTA (AP) — Wallace Butts, charged by a magazine with rigging a football game, testified today in federal court he had no knowledge of alleged gambling activities by two friends, one a business associate in a small loan firm.

He was asked about the telephone calls and his association with two persons on cross-examination after denying he had ever betrayed Georgia's football team by giving inside information to opposing coaches.

"Emphatically no," the stocky, graying Butts replied when asked if he had fed pre-game data on Georgia to Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama last fall.

Answering questions of an attorney for Curtis Publishing Co., Butts said he knew Frank Scoby

Hundreds Inhale Deadly Chlorine Gas

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hundreds of residents in the north-east section of the city were hospitalized today by a reported leakage from a chlorine gas tank, police reported.

The tank is believed to be in a chemical plant. Although details were not immediately available early reports indicated many persons were taken to two hospitals.

The area is both residential and industrial.

Lung Disease Causes Death

BOSTON (AP)—The baby son of President and Mrs. Kennedy died early today from a dreaded lung disease which overpowered his heart. The President stood just steps away when his son's 39-hour fight for life came to an end.

Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died at the Boston Children's Hospital Medical Center at 4:04 a.m. (EDT). Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger told newsmen of the baby's death at 4:26 a.m. at a hastily-called conference in the hospital.

Mrs. Kennedy, recuperating at Otis Air Force Base Hospital on Cape Cod from the Caesarean delivery Wednesday, learned of her son's death 2 hours and 31 minutes later from her Washington obstetrician, Dr. John W. Walsh.

Mrs. Kennedy was given a mild sedative and slept until the President arrived by helicopter from Boston at 9:30 a.m.

The President spent 2 hours and 10 minutes with his wife in her special suite at the big Air Force base and planned another visit to her later today.

Private funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday with Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, celebrating the "Mass of the Angels" in his private chapel. The Mass is a special ceremony for baptized babies.

Burial will be in the Kennedy plot in Holywood Cemetery in nearby Brookline, Mass. It will be the first burial in the plot.

At Otis, Salinger said death was attributed to hyaline membrane disease, a membrane infection in the lungs and feared among premature babies.

Salinger told newsmen of the cause of death while the President was with his wife at the Otis hospital.

The President was only a few feet from the big breathing apparatus that held his son when doctors told him breathing difficulties had stifled the child's heart.

The President spent the night in special quarters of the medical center.

Only Thursday afternoon, doctors placed the child in the Hyperbaric chamber, a submarine-like device 31 feet long and 8 feet in diameter to aid his lungs to breathe. The apparatus is the

Modifications Needed

Thresher Tragedy Slows Sub Works

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The tragedy of the nuclear submarine Thresher is slowing Navy plans for a quick buildup of the Polaris submarine fleet.

Officials estimate a five-month holdup while modifications are made to Polaris subs now being assembled in boatyards. The changes are being made in hopes of preventing a recurrence of the disaster which sank the Thresher last April 10 with loss of 129 lives.

Although the Thresher was not a Polaris submarine, the Navy decided to "reschedule construction and overhaul intervals" on all nuclear subs.

The decision could delay deployment of Polaris craft with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and in the Pacific and Indian oceans. The nine missile subs now on patrol are in waters off Europe.

A Navy spokesman termed the delay minor and reported it is not expected to upset the Navy's timetable which calls for 41 Polaris subs prowling the seas by fiscal 1967.

The delay came to light with the arrival here this month of the Alexander Hamilton to practice-fire Polaris missiles in Atlantic waters off Cape Canaveral.

The Alexander Hamilton was to be the first of a parade of submarines slated to arrive here at the rate of one a month for 18 months in what Navy men had dubbed the "boat-of-the-month club." The normal procedure has been for a submarine to arrive here two or three months after commissioning, conduct tests for two or three weeks, then spend three or four months on final shakedown and fitting before going on station with 16 missiles.

Up to now the subs have been

President To Wife's Bedside

Shows Strain Of Two Days Of Worry Over Infant

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — A sorrowing President Kennedy arrived at his wife's hospital bedside today to share with her the heartbreak of their infant son's death.

The President was accompanied by his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy was told of the death of her infant son by her doctor at 6:35 a.m., 2 hours and 21 minutes after the child died.

The news was given to her by Dr. John W. Walsh, the obstetrician who delivered the baby by Caesarean section just after noon on Wednesday.

In telling how the President's wife was informed, Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Mrs. Kennedy then was given a mild sedative and slept until the arrival of the President at the base hospital.

In marked contrast to the tragic occasion, the presidential helicopter settled down in the bright sunshine.

It was the end of a sad journey for the chief executive to the bedside of his wife, who had been through two days of worry after the Caesarean birth of her third child.

The President completed his journey to the hospital in a white convertible. Contrary to his usually informal, open manner of travel on Cape Cod, the President rode concealed beneath the car's black canvas top.

He and his brother had to pass a battery of cameramen as they walked swiftly up the few steps to the hospital wing.

Members of the staff, patients, doctors and nurses craned out of windows in adjoining barracks buildings to catch a glimpse of the President as he arrived, this time in sadness instead of in the joyful mood that had followed the first hours of the birth of young Patrick.

Capital Gains Tax Program Change Ok'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sweeping revision of the capital gains tax was agreed on today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

This cleared the way for the tax writers to complete next week their version of a proposed $10 billion over-all tax cut bill.

The House is expected to vote on the bill in September.

With most of the details settled, the committee expects to come to grips next week with the question that interests most individual taxpayers—what new rates will be recommended?

These apparently cannot be as low as President Kennedy proposed, since the committee has not provided as much counterbalancing revenue gain as the President suggested.

A rough estimate by a committee spokesman today was that the revisions so far agreed on would increase revenues, directly and indirectly, by about $1 billion during the first year.

The committee still has under consideration some further changes that could raise the estimate. Kennedy's proposed revenue code revisions would have raised an estimated $3.2 billion to offset

Versailles Church Gets New Pastor

The Rev. Alford Scott is the new pastor of Versailles Christian Church.

Mr. Scott has been pastor of Olean Christian Church several years. He and his family will move to Versailles soon.

Karlstadt Family Singers Concert at Christ Lutheran

Appearing in a sacred concert at Christ Lutheran Church, Aug. 15 at 8 p.m., the Karlstadt Family Singers from Tacoma, Wash., will present a concert of sacred choral music representative of the great music masters such as Bach, Brahms, Grieg, Handel, Gretchaninoff, Pitoni, Mendelssohn and Tchaikovsky. In addition, a variety of national carols and folk songs, together with a group of seasonal hymnody gems, will be presented.

Originating from a busy parsonage home where singing was made a special family project, the Karlstadt Family Singers regard their concert appearances as a mission to provide inspiration for families to do things together in their homes. Pastor and Mrs. Alfred M. Karlstadt and their five children (Janice and Curtiss are now in college, Judy is a high school sophomore, Elizabeth is in the fourth grade, and Debby is in kindergarten) have set aside one evening each week for "family night," at which time they have pursued the difficult task of mastering a wide range of sacred music in full harmony "a cappella" without any accompaniment. Thus, a unique ensemble has been developed which is capable of producing effects generally achieved only by large mixed choirs. Many of the concert selections have been drawn from the repertoires of famous college choirs which have graced the concert halls of our nation.

The family singers, for the fourth consecutive summer, are spending their vacation by traveling and giving concerts enroute. This summer, they will travel through at least 16 south-central and mid-western states, giving a total of 43 concerts.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church to Have Guest Speaker

St. Paul's Lutheran Church will again have a guest speaker in both Sunday morning worship services. Joel Kettner, a student at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, has chosen as his topic, "Trust Christ for Every Trial."

Boy Scout Troop 69 will meet at 7 p.m. Monday.

Call to Richer Life Sunday Sermon Topic

The sermon topic at First Christian Church Sunday will be "The Call to a Richer Life." Rev. Harry Purviance will bring the message at 8:30 a.m. The special music will be a solo by Mrs. M. O. Stevens, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

Boy Scout Troop 66 will meet Tuesday.

On Wednesday Class 12 will meet at the Church for their noon luncheon.

The Chi Rho will have a Swimming Party Wednesday. Please meet at Convention Hall at 5 p.m.

On Thursday the Special Gifts Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m.

To Continue Series

Pastor Armin F. Klemme will continue his presentation of personalities from Genesis Sunday at Immanuel United Church of Christ. "Lot" will be the individual discussed.

Annual planning retreat of Junior and Senior High Youth Fellowships will be at Vermont Park at 11:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Those who will be in seventh through high school grades are asked to be on hand to plan activities, program themes, projects, etc., for the coming year (Sept. 1963 through Aug. 1964). Each is asked to bring a covered dish table service, plus money for soft drinks.

Feeling Ignored Is One Of Life's Ordeals for Women

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of life's little ordeals to most wives is feeling their husbands never listen to them.

"I could talk to my husband until I was blue in the face, and he'd never hear a word I say"—so runs the complaint.

Actually, this is an exaggeration, as are most things that wives say.

The fact is that the average husband listens a lot to his wife. This can be detected by the surprised look on his face when she finally stops talking.

Or, it is sometimes shown by an offhand remark he may drop while at lunch with his office cronies.

Such as: "Well, guess what assigne idea my wife has now. You wouldn't believe me if I told you. She wants me to buy a two-steated lawnmower so we can cut the grass together."

Most husbands merely are playing possum when they appear deaf to what their wives are saying. Partly it's a matter of self-defense.

It is also caused by a basic difference between the way men and women use conversation.

A man feels he thinks a situation through silently and then puts his message into words. But he believes a woman most of the time only uses words as a camouflage to hide her real thoughts—if any. So why listen?

To him, feminine conversation is like a waterfall, full of more sound than sense. But he is also well aware that, like a waterfall, it has the long slow inescapable power of erosion. It will achieve its purpose, however long it takes.

Most husbands also have a conviction that their wives never start a conversation except with a hidden motive—to get a fellow to do something he doesn't want to do.

That's why a husband is instantly wary when his wife switches off the television set, and says: "Henry, talk to me."

Trapped, Henry leans back and waits. Grimly he vows this time to listen.

Her oral waterfall begins. His wife tells him about her quarrel with the grocer, the naughty words their son learned at camp, how she fixed the broken attic fan with a bent hairpin, single-handed, the time on their vacation 12 years ago when he drove off and left her in a filling station restroom, what's wrong with his relatives and what's right with hers, and 10 good reasons why he has to earn more money if they aren't to wind up in the poorhouse.

Finally, as her countenance turns a bright indigo, Henry puts his palm over her mouth and shuts her off.

"I did it at last!" he shouts triumphantly.

"Did what?" she mumbles through his hand.

"I let you talk yourself blue in the face—and I heard every single word you had to say."

That's what Henry thinks. But when he removes his hand, he finds she has a few thousand left.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old boy who hopes you can solve my problem or lead me to someone who will.

My voice is high-pitched and weak. I sound like a girl. It has always been this way, but somehow it seems to be getting worse. I'm becoming so self-conscious about it that I never answer the phone unless I absolutely have to. This is not my imagination, Ann. People are always mistaking me for my younger sister. Operators frequently say, "Yes, Ma'am."

I hate to speak in class because of my voice. My grades slipped last year because I'd rather shake my head no than to give the right answer.

People say I'm not bad looking. I have a good build, am a neat dresser and have a pleasant personality, but my voice is ruining my life. Can you suggest help for me? — DAVID

Dear David: First go to a doctor and find out if there is something organically wrong. If you get a clean bill of health ask the doctor to suggest a speech clinic. You can strengthen your vocal cords just as you can strengthen other parts of your body.

Market Up After SEC Final Report

NEW YORK (AP)—With anxiety removed by release of the Securities and Exchange Commission's final investigative report, the stock market advanced late this afternoon.

Volume for the day was estimated at 3.6 million shares against 3.4 million Thursday.

Prices moved up steadily and moderately from the opening.

The gain was centered in selective issues outside the circle of usual market leaders.

Wall Street was relieved at the rather neutral tone of the concluding chapters of the SEC report. It had been hampered by uncertainty prior to the release.

Steels, motors, utilities, nonferrous metals, chemicals, rails, airlines and drugs advanced. Air carriers were weak.

Gains ranged from fractions to a point or so with a few high priced specialty issues making wider moves.

Parke Davis, up 1¼, appeared to be headed for the top of the most active list.

Kress lost 2 points and Genesco was up about a half.

Polaroid spurred more than 5 points and Xerox was up nearly 4. IBM added more than 2.

U.S. Steel and American Telephone advanced about half a point.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were irregularly higher.

U.S. government bonds were unchanged. Corporates were a shade higher.

be prohibited, with assurance that any violator will be exposed," he said.

Atmospheric tests can be detected at great distance because of the radioactive debris.

Underwater tests can be detected because they set up sound and pressure waves that travel thousands of miles. Tests far out in space can be detected with reasonable certainty because they throw off some radiations that are different from those ordinarily found in the solar system.

Scientists cannot be sure of identifying "seismic events" — underground shocks — of less than magnitude 4 with monitoring stations outside the Soviet Union.

Magnitude is a way of measuring underground shocks on a scale that puts most property-damaging earthquakes at magnitude 5 or higher. Magnitude 5 is 10 times the strength of magnitude 4; magnitude 6 is 10 times the strength of magnitude 5, and on up the scale.

In dry, sandy soil of the type found in many areas of the Soviet Union, a bomb of 10 kilotons' yield — equal to 10,000 tons of TNT — sets off a shock of magnitude 4.

By suspending the bomb in an underground cavern—a technique which tends to "decouple" blast energy from the surrounding earth—the power of the device can be increased greatly without its showing more than magnitude 4 on seismographs outside the Soviet Union.

Exclusion of underground tests from the treaty does not mean the costly research effort of the past five years was wasted, Dr. Press said.

Dr. Press believes two things are needed:

First, continued research toward more sensitive detection and identification methods. Second, on-site inspections (within the boundaries of the Soviet Union) until improved techniques are available.

There's the hitch.

"The Russians have consistently objected to on-site inspections," Dr. Press said. "The treaty is the best compromise we could expect at this time. At least it does end, or is designed to end, contamination of the atmosphere."

eration," said a senior police officer.

It was the first successful robbery of a mail train in the 125 years the traveling post offices have been in operation.

Police were convinced that the gang had been told when and where to strike by an employee of either the Post Office or the government-operated railroads. The rest of the train—containing some 70 unarmed postal sorters — was ignored. The richest haul came from the second coach which together with the coach ahead and the locomotive was uncoupled and moved a mile down the track to be unloaded.

The coup was carried out in 15 minutes with split second timing probably based on months of planning and spying on the line. Only afterwards did people living in the nearby village of Cheddington remember men who came to take movies of the trains rattling by.

The train engineer, Jack Mills, 58, was recovering in a hospital with eight stitches in his scalp. Two of the masked men jumped into his cab, clubbed him with iron bars and handcuffed him to the firemen, Dave Whitby.

"Dave and I were ordered to lie face down in the grass as about 15 other men swarmed aboard the train and smashed open the two coaches with pickaxes," said Mills.

"Two of the gang stood guard over Dave and I and said if we tried to make a move we would get another beating."

"Dave and I lay very still. I'd had one beating and didn't want another."

Most London newspapers carried editorials demanding an overhaul of railroad security measures. Some suggested that mail trains carry armed guards. None do at present.

Much of the loot was paper currency being returned by Scottish banks to the London mint for repulping. Officials said the banks must bear that loss because the notes had not reached the central bank.

Rights Bill Amendment From GOP

By JOHN CHADWICK

Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight Republican senators introduced an amendment to the administration's civil rights bill today to prohibit racial discrimination under all federal aid programs.

It would make a cut off of funds mandatory, instead of discretionary as proposed by President Kennedy, but provision would be made for judicial review.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., told the Senate he has brought the amendment to the attention of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, who disclosed Thursday the administration is revising its original proposal, but didn't say what changes he had in mind in this part of the administration's 7-point civil rights program.

Keating expressed hope that the revisions being made by Kennedy would reflect the principles of the amendment offered by the GOP senators.

In the past, however, Kennedy has rejected pleas for a mandatory denial of federal aid funds because of discriminatory practices.

Kennedy was testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee when he disclosed the administration was working on revision of this section of its bill.

He had been scheduled for an eighth round of questioning by committee members today but the session was canceled.

Hollywood a Top Target In Integration Drive

EDITOR'S NOTE — Negroes threaten Hollywood with a nationwide boycott in a civil rights drive; Negro stars tell congressional probes a decent livelihood on Broadway is virtually impossible. Efforts of Negroes to accomplish their aims and the problems involved are detailed in the companion stories from Hollywood and New York.

By DAVE SMITH
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Negroes have made the entertainment capital a top target of their civil rights drive.

They threaten nationwide boycotts if they don't have their way. Hollywood industry and labor leaders say they are sympathetic, and have begun negotiations.

But there are serious problems, and even the most optimistic expect no overnight change in television and movie programming and production.

Negro demands are backed by such stars as Marion Brando, Paul Newman, Charlton Heston, Joan Woodward, Steve Allen, Frank Sinatra, Anthony Franciosa, Burt Lancaster, Debbie Reynolds, Joan Crawford and Bette Davis.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People contends that Hollywood, except for recent films that address themselves specifically to the prejudice problem, still gives the Negro the "Uncle Tom" treatment—as a menial or comic character.

A threat to boycott Hollywood films and products of television sponsors unless Negroes show up soon in all phases of the film industry has spurred concern.

But three craft unions, Scenic Artists Local 816, Cameramen's Local 659, and Film Editors Local 776, have rejected demands that Negroes be assigned to film crews as outlined by the NAACP. They contend that according to the request would violate labor contracts, would amount to sanctioning "featherbedding" and would be contrary to California's fair employment law.

The Screen Actors Guild and the Association of Motion Picture Producers, have agreed on a contract with a clause calling on producers to cast performers "belonging to all groups in all types of roles."

In brief, the NAACP demands that

1. Negroes appear in television commercials.

2. Negroes be shown in professional roles to balance menial roles.

3. Negroes comprise one-ninth of film casts and crews, since they comprise about one-ninth of the nation's population.

4. The Negro be depicted as he really is in the context of American life.

5. A Negro have a continuing role on each television series.

Unless a Negro technician is installed on the crew of the "Hazel" television series, the NAACP threatens a nationwide boycott of the sponsor, Ford Motor Co.

William Dozier, executive vice president in charge of production for Screen Gems, producers of "Hazel," says "we will be very pleased" if the craft unions should send a Negro technician to the "Hazel" crew, but he says technicians are provided by the unions under a union shop contract over which the studio can exercise no control.

George Flaherty, international representative of the International Association of Theatrical and Screen Employees, says that employment is down 14 or 15 per cent and many union members have been out of work for years.

Richard Jenks, president of the Alliance of Television Film Producers, says: "Right now, every Negro that is placed in the film industry is going to displace one white who is currently in the labor pool. Without denying the rightness of the drive for equality, at this particular time we are faced with the possibility of losing a new work force upon an industry that is unable to employ all its trained workers. The film industry is unique among the nation's major businesses, in that it has decreased in past years."

Realistic Art Is Puzzling

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Visitors at the Los Angeles County Art Museum are puzzling over an exhibit of "pop art." This is a movement that stresses the painting of recognizable subjects. It's a reaction against abstract art.

The result: Massive oil reproductions of comic strips, soup cans, dollar bills, etc.

The exhibit was assembled by Lawrence Alloway, curator of New York's Guggenheim Museum, from works of six Eastern and six Western artists.

The gallery visitor is greeted by the works of Wayne Thiebaud. His canvases, in stark detail, reproduce a delicatessen counter, a jawbreaker machine, a box of cereal, a cake counter and a row of cream soups.

Then comes Melvin Ramos, who seems to be intrigued with comic-book covers, especially of the girly variety.

Phillip Hefferton reproduces currency. His bills have a gimmick. "Sinking George" shows Washington on a one-spot with only the upper half of his face showing and his Delaware River boat unmanned. "Winkin' Lincoln" is doing just that on a five-dollar bill.

Then there are Edward Rusch's words. That's all, just simple words like "ace," "boss," "honk" and "Annie" in bright signboard letters against contrasting backgrounds.

The greatest puzzlers were the works of Jim Goode. They consisted of canvases of single colors. Before each was placed a milk bottle. They were called "One Year Old" and "Happy Birthday." A large canvas with three milk bottles in front of it was titled "Leroy."

Viewer reaction ranged from bewilderment to ridicule to amusement.

Integration Records Set On Broadway

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway sets a record for shows with integrated casts.

Negro stars tell congressional probes a decent livelihood in the theater is virtually impossible.

Those items from the 1962-'63 entertainment year give a good idea of the cross-trends to be considered in looking over the obviously sincere, cautious and mostly unpublicized efforts of the American stage to keep step with the spirit of the times.

Picketing of two Main Stem theaters by the Congress of Racial Equality and the Committee for Employment of Negro Performers was tried 15 months ago—and hurriedly called off.

The groups had chosen the only playhouse on Broadway which has a Negro manager, and in the other case were assailing a producer who pioneered the employment of Negro stagehands.

There have been no demonstrations since.

Efforts to increase the percentage of Negro performers has been just part of the integration effort going on since about 1955. Jobs for scene shifters, assorted technicians and musicians have been sought successfully.

There also has been agitation for employment of Negroes as ushers, boxoffice employees and other front-house attendants.

Actors Equity in 1955 started publishing annual reports on the number of Negro performers employed. Frederick O'Neal, a Negro who is Equity's vice president in charge of such matters, voices cautious optimism.

Last season, he says Negroes appeared in 21 of 59 Broadway presentations—and most importantly, in 13 of the plays, in parts not calling specifically for Negroes.

The previous record for integrated performances was 10 during 1957-58.

The 1962-63 employment of Negro players on the Main Stem totaled 51, compared with an earlier seasonal top of 182.

The Off-Broadway zone, which by tradition is supposed to be more experimental and given to the liberal viewpoint, last season hired only 26 Negroes for 12 of 68 shows—a ratio that has remained "rather consistent."

Limited employment opportunities for their race were protested by such talents as Sidney Poitier, Diahann Carroll and Hilda Simms last fall before a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., who pledged legislation on the situation.

Playhouses in Louisiana, Tennessee, North Carolina, Alabama and Georgia subsequently went along with the edict.

At Least One Jolly East German

By JIM BECKER

BERLIN (AP) — There is at least one jolly East German.

He drives a taxi in the Communist sector of Berlin, knows about 14 words of English and makes most of his money on Sunday.

That's the day off for East German sightseeing buses. A fellow with get-up-and-go can make a mint hauling curious Westerners around.

Lines of tourists come to East Berlin on Sunday, passing slowly through a hut just beyond the wall, showing their passports. The average time spent waiting to get in is about an hour.

Some visitors walk about a block, then turn around and return to West Berlin. Others strike out for the railroad station, where the jolly taxi driver lies in wait.

He crams a couple of visitors into his battered cab — it's only five years old but looks as if it went through the war — and begins roaring down the wide, tree-lined avenues.

He points out the magnificent Greek-style museum and church, and the former royal palace across the street. The museum is being rebuilt, but the bombed out church is bricked up.

He passes a white-painted reviewing stand, similar to the one in Moscow's Red Square. Soviet Premier Khrushchev and German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht speak there.

He drives down Karl Marx Allee, formerly Stalin Allee. It is lined with apartments in the grotesque wedding-cake style dear to the heart of Stalin—and the buildings are crumbling already.

"Karl Marx Allee," the jolly German says. "Before Stalin Allee. Here big statue Stalin. Now down, Kaput."

He points to the buildings. "Russian. Fall Down, Kaput." Then off to a street lined with tasteful, modern apartments and past an open air cafe, with strolling fiddlers.

"Only rich peoples here. No Goot." Off to the Brandenburg Gate, where a knot of American tourists has gathered to photograph a knot of American tourists on the West Berlin side.

Past the square where Hitler made his speeches, the headquarters of the Luftwaffe and the bunker where Hitler took his life. "Here Hitler talk. There Luftwaffe. Goering. Here Hitler kaput."

Back to the border crossing point. "Check Point Charlie. Hah, hah, hah, Maybe varoom. Hah, hah, hah."

He makes motions as if to drive right through. "Wall," he says, and points to the badly plastered wall, topped with jagged barbed wire. "No goot," and he spits in its direction.

The performance is good for a big tip.

The only thing that is not the same is its location. The spot where it originally stood, less than two miles away, vibrates now to the hum of automobile traffic. Perhaps the best possible monument to the inventor of the Model T and originator of the assembly line, a modern highway overpass (lower photo) covers the original farmhouse site. Final Installment Of SEC Report Coming Up

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The long history of efforts to protect the general public in making stock investments has seen almost every danger tackled.

But all hands still leave as apparently unsolvable a prime one — protection of the stock buyer against himself.

The Securities and Exchange Commission's final instalment on its long study of the 1961 stock market boom and the 1962 stock market bust rounds out a long list of new suggestions for protection.

But still the unwary and the greedy will risk coming in croppers in their pursuit of gains.

The get-rich-quick gambler, the blind follower of tips, the ignorant of signs of trouble ahead for particular corporations, doubtless always will be with us, like the poor — and probably also will themselves join the ranks of the poor.

But the aids to wise investment

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

SMASHING CENTENNIAL: American taxpayers helped the Internal revenue Service celebrate its 100th birthday by pouring a record tax take—$105.9 billion—into federal coffers in the fiscal year which ended June 30.

The Treasury bonanza included a new high for individual income and employment taxes, $67.9 billion, and a $6.5-billion increase over fiscal 1962, when receipts totaled $99.4 billion.

BELLYACHE: Eighty-year-old Rep. Howard W. Smith, chairman of the House Rules Committee, Wednesday suffered what he called "a bellyache," but recovered sufficiently to leave the Capitol after treatment.

The Virginia Democrat told photographers and newsmen as he walked to his automobile after several hours in the office of Dr. George W. Calver, the congressional physician, that he'd call them "if I drop dead after getting home."

But making a law against an evil doesn't always guarantee it won't pop up again.

Bucket shops—the fly-by-night sellers of questionable stock—are outlawed. But some citizens are still taken in by them before they are discovered by authorities.

Rigging the market for a stock, either on the up or down side, is forbidden—but still can happen if official guards are dropped.

Among practices coming under regulation is the disclosure of financial facts about corporations whose stocks are sold outside the exchanges.

Along with this are a variety of attempts to see that all stock transactions and holdings by insiders in a corporation are reported to the public — if it takes the trouble to look them up.

Social Need: Group Therapy

Among the many unsolved mysteries in today's complex society is the strange change that takes place in individuals when they join a group or movement.

As individuals, most people are inclined to be charitable, kindly and reasonable. They will risk their lives to save the life of a kitten or a puppy. They will go all out to help a needy person or family they never heard of until they read a story in a newspaper.

But let them join a group—any kind of a group—and they seem to change completely.

Their viewpoint becomes narrow and restricted. The self-interest of the group to which they belong becomes the only way of life. And any other group which happens to have conflicting views or aims is automatically regarded as a foe and must be dealt with accordingly.

You doubt this? Read the dogmatic and arbitrary pronouncements of the representatives of groups engaged in any type of organized squabble. Tune in to any television program on which such a person is being quizzed. Note the finality of the conclusions this embattled warrior has reached. Study his face and the grim determination it reflects. Ask yourself how you would like to effect a compromise between this group leader and his counterpart on the other side.

Then make yourself feel even more melancholy by remembering that the representative of the opposing group is very likely to be just as self-centered, just as stubborn, just as demanding and unreasonable as our first boy.

You end up by asking yourself, "How can a nation hope to progress and flourish when so many of its people are dominated by self-interest, by narrow viewpoints, by frightening disregard of the rights and welfare of any group but their own?"

The problem is heightened by the fact that any real solution would seem to be spiritual rather than material.

Here is something you can't solve by feeding facts into an electronic computer. It has to be solved in the hearts of human beings.

For everybody's sake, it's time we started solving it—person by person, group by group.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Paul Hedderich, manager of the J. C. Penney store, Mrs. Hedderich and their children, Dorothy and P. J., are enjoying a two weeks' vacation with relatives in Pana, Ill., Biloxi, Miss., and points along the Gulf of Mexico. During his absence, Raphael Denny, assistant manager, will be in charge of the store.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Emil Neef loving cup for medal play at golf at the Sedalia Country Club was won by A. M. Embry by a score of 177. The next five contestants were: James P. Quinn, Jr., 181; Charles G. Wilson, 182; Joe Evans, 183; E. C. Kenagy, 185; and Jack Crawford, 187.

Hoover's Birthday

Herbert Hoover will be 89 years old on Saturday. It is a ripe age—and one can only hope that the 31st President of the United States will be with us for many years to come.

Few men have seen so much of the world or done so much for the world as Mr. Hoover. He has known triumph and tragedy, victory and defeat, exaltation and despair, all beyond the ken of most mortals. In private life and in public, whatever the destinies of the moment, he has gone resolutely ahead as his conscience and his heart and intellect directed. And he has emerged a wise and mellow man, whose friendships and loyalties are beyond numbering.

It is for his work on behalf of the hungry, the dispossessed and the downtrodden that Herbert Hoover will be best remembered in history—and it is history that, finally, separates wheat from chaff and presents a man

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jets' Moment of Breathless Silence

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson has started a tour of some of the key countries which affect the foreign policies of the United States. Today he writes from Greece.)

By DREW PEARSON

ATHENS—The most dangerous part of any jet flight out of Idlewild airport comes about sixty seconds after your plane has left the ground. It occurs a hundred times a day and it's the fault of government red tape.

About sixty seconds after leaving the ground, your jet is ordered to throttle down. Passengers have an eerie sensation that the engines have failed and the plane is about to make a forced landing. There is a moment of breathless silence. Then the power comes on again.

When I talked to the pilot about this I found that every jet leaving Idlewild is ordered by the New York port authority to cut down power at about 600 feet altitude.

"We get a five-second count-down from the tower," explained the pilot, "and at the count of zero we have to cut back our engines no matter what. The passengers don't know it, but it's the most dangerous part of their flight to Europe. It's called 'noise abatement.' I suppose some local politician put the pressure on. I don't know. All I know is that at that particular point in the flight we have no power to maneuver. If we had to get out of the way of another plane or some emergency arose, we'd be out of luck."

What has happened is that all international passengers are the victims of the growing controversy which has arisen between those who live on the ground and those who fly over the ground near airports. While the debate continues, that first minute of flight by the giant jets flying to Los Angeles, San Francisco, London, Rome and Paris is the most dangerous part of the journey.

Private Marshall Plan

American businessmen of Greek origin have organized a private and unofficial Marshall Plan of their own for the Greek economy, and it is having important effects.

Greece and Turkey were the first countries, then in desperate economic straits, to benefit from the Truman doctrine in 1947 and later the Marshall Plan. The contrast between the limping Greece which I saw after the war and the pulsating, vigorous Greece of today is amazing. But U.S. aid has now stopped, and this tiny, rocky country with just about the same population as the city of New York is on its own.

Guest Editorial

CAPE GIRARDEAU MISSOURIAN: Only a footnote. — William Jennings Bryan may be revolving in his grave in the wake of President Kennedy's signing of a bill to replace all $1 Treasury "silver certificates" with $1 Federal Reserve notes. Within a few months, no longer will the U. S. Treasury back any money with silver.

Bryan achieved national fame during the 1896 presidential campaign with his famous "cross of gold" speech. He and a band of Western-state politicians fought long and bitterly to have U. S. currency backed with silver, instead of the yellow metal.

Since the U. S. went off the gold standard after the first election of Franklin Roosevelt, paper currency — except for the $1 and $2 bills — has been backed by the credit and stability of the national monetary system, as operated by the Federal Reserve banks, not by specific metal.

Now a great silver shortage is developing, and the Treasury needs the silver which backed the $1 bills for use in making coins. This is interesting largely because it proves again how the great causes of one era give way and are forgotten by succeeding generations.

Today the idea of "free silver" as a panacea for American industrial and agrarian ills is an encyclopedia footnote, of interest only to historians.

whole in the context of his time. Mr. Hoover started from humble origins but knew financial success at an early age. Then he divorced himself from commerce and turned to public life. Through wars and revolutions his was the guiding hand that saved millions from misery, pestilence, starvation, and death.

Happy birthday, Herbert Hoover! The civilized world will echo that fine old greeting.

The World Today

Just Waiting for Another Stick-Up

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this quiet summer more than half way through the 20th century, nations have so much confidence in one another they act like bank guards waiting for a stick-up.

Skepticism has become an instinct for survival, uneasiness a necessity, and suspicion as natural as breathing.

They operate on the theory that what looks good may be bad, what's quiet may be ominous, talk of peace could be a trick, what's true today may be wrong tomorrow.

With some pride President Kennedy Thursday sent the Senate—which is sure to approve—the limited nuclear test ban treaty signed this week with Russia.

He said: "This is the first concrete result of 18 years of effort by the United States to impose limits on the nuclear arms race." He hoped, he said, it may lead to even better things.

But there was no wild rejoicing. There was gladness. At least this much progress between the two countries had been made. Yet, even as the two sides talk of other possible agreements, there is constant looking under the bed.

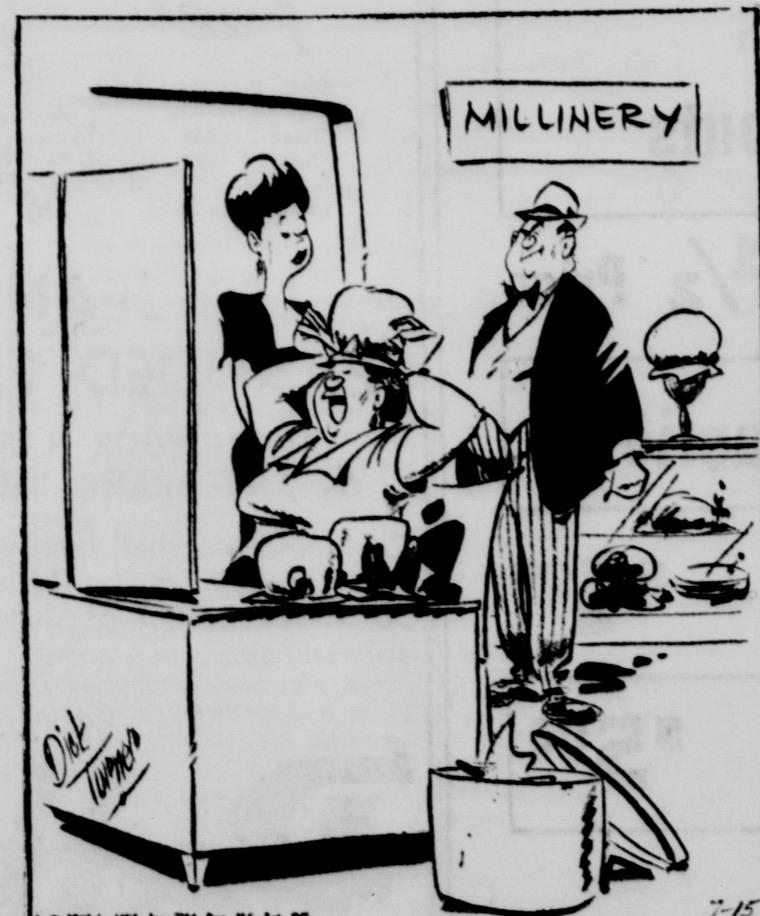

Even the most optimistic could not help wondering: Why at this time, but never in the past, was Soviet Premier Khrushchev willing to take this first step which could, but may never at all and may have the opposite intention, lead to peace?

Khrushchev, with no more illusions about the West than the West has about him, is probably more tormented by concern about his huge Communist neighbor, Red China, than about American missiles.

The Chinese — increasingly dubious about the more affluent Russians, even about the dedication to communism — have been deriding and abusing them for months.

The Doctor's Mailbag

Acid Treatment No Longer Recommended for Gastritis

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In my article on kidney stones I mentioned a drug that dissolves certain types of stone. This drug, Renacidin, was found by the Food and Drug Administration not to be safe, and was withdrawn from the market. It is hoped that a chemically related but safer drug will soon be found to take its place.

Q—My doctor says my stomach doesn't put out any acid. He has had me taking weak hydrochloric acid for 14 years. Will I have to take it all my life?

A—The most common cause of absent acid is chronic gastritis. After several years this usually leads to anemia. Anemia even without gastritis may be associated with absence of acid. Cancer of the stomach also causes absence of acid but if you had this disease your doctor would have had your stomach removed long ago. Although dilute hydrochloric acid was used for many years to treat persons with gastritis and no acid in the stomach, there is no evidence that this does any good and the practice has been largely discontinued. If you have anemia with your gastritis it would seem more appropriate to treat this condition.

Q—I have been told that I have narcolepsy and that there is no cure for it. What causes it and what is the outcome?

A—In a few persons with narcolepsy there may be an epileptic factor. This can be proved or disproved by having a brain wave tracing or electroencephalogram. In others there may be an inflammation or other organic disease in the brain. But in most victims no cause can be found.

The manifestations vary from an overpowering desire to sleep which can, however, be fought off for a short while to an uncontrollable lapse into sleep that may come on when one is engaged in talking, standing, playing cards, or any other normal activity. Since an attack may come on while the victim is driving an auto, such a person should not drive.

In some persons the sleep is so light that touching the sleeper or calling his name will rouse him but others cannot be awakened. Since they may fall from a standing or sitting position while in a public place, they may be taken to a hospital. This is a great annoyance as there is nothing to be done but release the victim when he comes to.

The outlook is favorable in that, unless one is doing something hazardous when the attack comes on, the condition in no way shortens life. In some persons it can be controlled by taking large doses of amphetamine (obtainable only on a physician's prescription). Tranquilizers should be avoided as they have been found to make the condition worse.

Q—Is it possible for daily exposure to cigar smoke to cause lung cancer? I do not smoke myself.

A—Although the evidence of a causative relationship between smoking and lung cancer is mounting steadily, it is still not conclusively proved and other factors undoubtedly play a contributory part. There is a greater correlation between lung cancer and cigarette smoking than between lung cancer and cigar smoking and there is no significant correlation between exposure to second-hand tobacco smoke and lung cancer.

THERE IS NOTHING that leaves you feeling as messy as a fried chicken dinner. But, of course, there is nothing that gives you more pleasure, either. That is if you like fried chicken, and most people do.

One evening at a banquet recently when everybody had finished a very delicious chicken dinner and felt real goody, someone suggested that it would be a good idea if eating places would place wet wash cloths with chicken dinners. The speaker of the evening opened her purse and pulled out a paper wash cloth. "I always carry one of these with me," she said, "just in case I have a chicken dinner."—H. L.

THE LITTLE BOY'S favorite stories were always bear stories, so the family would make up stories about bears. The little boy's name was Jimmy and his daddy was named Jimmy, so they often used the name in the stories.

One day someone started to tell a story and began with: "There was Jimmy Bear and Mama Bear." The child was all interest at the beginning of the bear story.

"And then," said the story teller, "there was baby bear." But before they could get any farther the child grinned knowingly. "I knew that was going to happen," he said. — H. L.

GOING TO HER FIRST national convention, the woman was real pleased when everybody associated her town with a former national president from her club and said nice things about her. But when one of the national officers stated, regardless of how much they thought of her that they were always nervous around her because she was such a perfectionist.

The president of the club, who had always accepted her with love and affection but as one of the club and nobody to get upset about, replied with a flutter: "Oh dear, I'm the president of her club and I never thought anything about — now I guess I'll have to go home and get nervous."—H. L.

Tranquilizing Bath

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—One of my five daughters is at that transitional stage, not yet a young lady and certainly not a child. I want her to relinquish her ties to childhood gradually and mature naturally without undue haste and confusion.

Like many mothers with teenage daughters we have had repeated sessions trying to reach a mutual understanding of such problems as the amount of social liberty she should enjoy.

Unpleasant situations that arise are multiplied during this phase of acquiring independence and are upsetting to the entire family.

On one occasion that necessitated a hot bath to prevent a bad cold, I discovered that my daughter emerged from the tub calm, pleasant and cooperative. Since then when storm signals begin to wave, I urge her to indulge in a bubble bath and perhaps an extra lather shampoo. She invariably comes from the tub relaxed and more amiable. This relaxing bath routine is a wonderful way to calm overwrought nerves. — MRS. J. P.

DEAR POLLY—My pointer is for the men. Take an old plastic detergent bottle (the large ones are better) and tie a string to it. Then take a weight and tie it to the string. When you go fishing, you can mark the place you fish by letting the weight drop under the water. The bottle will float on top and mark the spot.—GARY

BOYS—and fishing girls, too—Put the top back on the empty plastic bottle so no water seeps in to keep it from really floating on top.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Washcloths purchased from the store are usually too small to enable one to wash the middle of his back when taking a bath. Make two big washcloths by cutting a 16x24-inch terry cloth towel in half. Use one of these when you bathe. You can grasp a corner in each hand and scrub your back with ease.—ART

GIRLS—I doubt that we will leave this one just to the boys.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Add one or two tablespoons of glycerin to lukewarm water when rinsing wool sweaters or other wool garments. This will keep the garments soft and will help prevent itching when they are worn.—MRS. P. B.

GIRLS—A little glycerin in the rinse water helps keep washable suede, chamois or pigskin gloves softer, too.—POLLY

NAACP Head's Son Refused Admittance

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The son of the president of the St. Louis County branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was refused admittance to the North Shore Club Wednesday night.

Morris Henderson, county NAACP president, filed a formal complaint with police under the public accommodation law. Henderson told police his son

Carl, 13, was not admitted to club. Carl entered the Chain of Rocks Amusement Park swimming pool last week after extensive picketing by the county NAACP.

Police quoted the North Shore Club as saying the boy was refused entrance because he was not a member.

By RALPH JONES

The other day the news editor handed me a little slip of paper I sometimes wish I had tossed away.

The slip was a communication from Dick Laffoon, farm placement representative from the Division of Employment Security office over on Fifth, to his home office in Jefferson City.

Being nosy, I read the slip, and this notation aroused my curiosity: "Volunteer farm placement representatives have placed 80 school boys to help farmers in this area with hay and other seasonal crops."

I began to wonder how you place 80 boys on farms in the first place, and what they are doing now, just before they return to the classrooms to begin a new school year.

I called Laffoon, knowing we had to work fast in order to photograph some of the boys at work or talking with the volunteer farm placement people in their neighborhoods, before school starts again.

Laffoon welcomed the idea of showing the public what the program is all about, and agreed to spend a full day attempting to locate some of the people involved. After all, he organized the program for this area and appointed the volunteer placement people in Pettis, Morgan, Benton and Johnson Counties when he came to the Sedalia Employment Security office a couple of years ago.

The area covered from the Sedalia office may cover four counties, but Laffoon and I agreed it was impossible in a short time to visit all of the counties, so we settled for Pettis County, and Laffoon began making arrangements for photographs.

The day after the arrangements were made we started out. Trouble with the schedule developed early, when we ran into a road block created by a truck load of pipe just south of Hughesville. We went around, and finally located Jim Wiley and W. Price Fowler in Wiley's store.

At first these people tried to make it easy on us, being city folks, but when they realized I had sweated many long days on farms, and that Laffoon had been in and out of more cattle barns than there are in all of Pettis County, they let us fend for ourselves.

They weren't kidding me, I knew that on farms, in summer, you sweat, but before the day was over I began to wish I had thrown the little slip of paper away.

We took photos of Wiley, a farm placement representative, some boys of Fowler's turkey farm, W. C. Jones of LaMonte and some boys there. Jones is the farm placement representative for LaMonte. Then we went to the farm of John Buckley and watched Buckley and a helper "ring" a pig. In the afternoon we went to Green Ridge and photographed Sam Sloan, another volunteer farm placement representative, with some boys he hired, then to Smithton where we took pictures of L. D. Hoehns, who with his father is working up one of the most expansive feed mixing operations in the country. L. D. Hoehns is a volunteer farm placement representative.

All the while Laffoon was telling me about the Volunteer Farm Placement Representative system and how it works. These are some of the things I learned:

Farm Placement Representatives promote good relations with the farm public. They must interview farm workers and refer them to farmers who need help. He appoints Volunteer Farm Placement Representatives and assists them with farm labor problems. He visits schools and obtains names of students interested in farm work during vacations. He coordinates the Farm Placement program.

COORDINATION — Farm placement activities in this area are coordinated by Dick Laffoon, Farm Placement Representative, Employment Security Office in Sedalia. Above, Laffoon, left, discusses farm labor problems with Jim Wiley, Hughesville, volunteer farm placement representative for the Hughesville area. Wiley uses his store as a clearing house for applicants for farm jobs.

RINGING A PIG — John T. Buckley, a farmer near LaMonte, and Floyd Smith, Whiteman AFB, complete the task of ringing a pig — placing a metal ring in the pig's nose to keep it from rooting under fences, etc. Smith was placed on the Buckley farm for spare time work through the farm placement system.

Representatives are usually individuals dealing with farmers, with a desire to serve the farmers in their areas. They are elevator operators, implement dealers, grocery store operators or other businessmen who use their places of business as a clearing house where farm workers may register, and where farmers may leave orders for farm hands.

After learning all of this, and meeting people all over the county, I was glad I didn't toss the slip away.

Denies Assassination Attempt In Yemen

CAIRO (AP)—Yemen's foreign minister, Mustafa Yacoub, was quoted in a Middle East News Agency dispatch from Sana as denying there was an attempt on the life of Field Marshal-President Abdullah Sallal on his provincial tour of Yemen last week.

"It is a false report," said Yacoub. Aden Radio said Wednesday that an unsuccessful assassination attempt made at Rada, southeastern Yemen, caused Sallal to cut short his tour and return to Sana, his capital.

holdup attempt. He was on his way to a parking area to get shopping baskets. The woman with the gun told her companion, "We'd better get him in here."

They went outside after the youth. A store official locked the doors behind them. Flustered, the women fled.

Police went looking for them.

Head of SEC Group Leaves to 'Unwind'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Milton H. Cohen, the Chicago attorney who headed the special committee studying the stock market, left within hours after the final report Thursday to go somewhere and "unwind."

Cohen told a newsman, "I'm going back to where I started from and take a long rest." The product of his committee for the Securities and Exchange Commission study totaled 5,400 pages, and the volumes weighed more than 30 pounds.

Asked how long he actually had worked on the study, Cohen commented, "It seems like decades." Then he said he began in November 1961.

Auto Is Demolished; Dozen Eggs Intact

HIBERNIA, N.J. (AP)—A dozen eggs came through unscathed when Robert E. White's auto was demolished in an accident.

Police said White was returning Wednesday night from the store when he lost control of the car and rammed a telephone pole.

Several sutures were required to close White's lacerations. But there on the front seat sat the eggs, not one of them broken.

White placed the eggs in the back seat of the police car that was to take him home, and then he got in and sat down—right on the eggs, smashing every one of them.

Merchants Defeat Pleasant Hill 4-2

Fall Goes Distance For Local's Victory

The Sedalia Merchants took a 4-2 win from Pleasant Hill in the first game Thursday night in the semi-pro tournament.

The winning hurler for Sedalia was Jim Fall, who went the distance on the mound. Larry Bowes marked down the Pleasant Hill loss. Bowes was replaced by Kerry Compton in the seventh.

With the win, Sedalia advances to meet Springfield at 7 p.m. tonight. A win in that game would send Sedalia against undefeated Jefferson City in the 9 p.m. game tonight. If Jefferson City should lose, a final playoff game would be played Saturday at 8 p.m.

The loss eliminated Pleasant Hill from the tourney. Pleasant Hill had defeated Whiteman AFB and Iberia before being sent to the losers' bracket by Sedalia last week. In the losers' bracket they had defeated Art Gaines before being whipped by Sedalia on Thursday.

Sedalia broke loose with three runs to take the lead in the top of the third. Pitcher Jim Fall led off with a base hit to right, followed by Bill Dey's hit to left. The two took second and third on a double steal, and Bill Higgins took first on an error by the catcher. Fall, attempting to steal home with the other runners going also was thrown out at the plate. Don Crank was intentionally passed, loading the bases. Dey then stole home with the other runners advancing to second and third. Earl Finley slipped a hit past the third baseman, with two runs scoring. Dick Horner struck out and Sonny Thomas popped out to first to end the inning.

Pleasant Hill scored two runs in the bottom of the fourth to shave Sedalia's lead. After Wash walked and Mayfield reached first on an error, Ross sacrificed the runners to second and third. Compton reached first on a fielder's choice, with Wash scoring on a close play at the plate. Ross then bounced to the second baseman, who forced Compton at second. The throw to first for the double play was high, allowing a run to score. Ford then flied out to left to retire the side.

Sedalia added one run to their lead in the top of the seventh. With one out, Higgins walked, took second on an overthrow on a pickoff play, going on to third. He scored on a hit by Crank. Crank stole second and Finley sacrificed him to third, but Dick Horner bounced out, second to first, to end the inning.

Springfield 6, Iberia 2

The Springfield Pointesters moved into the finals of the Missouri State Semi-Pro baseball tournament losers bracket, Thursday night, when they defeated the Iberia Merchants 6 to 2. They will meet the Sedalia Merchants in the 7 o'clock game tonight.

A pitchers battle was progress-

LODGE NOTICES

LaMonte Lodge No. 574, A. F. & A. M., will meet in stated communication on Friday, August 9, at 7:30 p. m. Regular business meeting.

Tobe M. Hardin, W. M.
R. B. Burke, Sec'y.

Local Sports Forecast For Today

Scheduled tonight in the state semi-pro baseball tourney is a game which may prove to be the final and championship game. At 7 p.m. the Sedalia Merchants will play Springfield, and the winner of that game will face undefeated Jefferson City at 9 p.m. with the championship at stake. If Jefferson City should lose, an extra game will be scheduled at 8 p.m. Saturday, with the winner taking the championship.

In the Little League loop, Kiwanis C's will play Optimist C's in the first game. The second game will be between Elks B's and Ice B's.

Weekend Fishing Forecast

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Fishing is picking up a little in northern Missouri, the Conservation Commission reported Thursday, but the night hours are still most productive.

Water temperatures are still too high for the best angling.

Conditions by regions:
Northwest — Upper Missouri producing good catches of channel and flathead cats. Farm ponds again providing good fishing with 4 to 6 pound bass reported on minnows, plastic worms and topwaters.

North Central—Fishing fair to good, with the Lower Grand, Chariton, Blackwater and Lamine clear and low. Carp and catfish being taken on bank lines. Sugar Creek Lake at Moberly produced a 9½ pound bass this week.

Northeast — Upper Mississippi and all larger streams clear and low with fair to good catches of channels and flatheads.

West central—Upper Osage murky and low, upper Pomme de Terre clear, lower murky with cat and drum good, carp fair. Sac River clear.

Central—Lower Osage clear and high, fair for carp. Gasconade, Big and Little Niangua and Maries clear with success poor.

East Central — Fishing improving, all streams clear and low.

Southeast — Fishing generally poor with water temperature in middle 80s.

Ozark — Current and Jacks Fork clear and low, success poor.

Southwest—Poor.

Individual lakes—

Bull Shoals—Clear, white bass fair at night.

Table Rock — Clear, bluegill most active, bass fair.

Taneycomo — Clear, trout fishing good, 10,000-10-inch trout stocked this week.

Clearwater — Clear and low with a few carp reported.

Wappapello—Clear and normal, a few big bass being taken on topwaters and minnows.

Norfolk — Clear and normal, fair numbers of channels taking trotlines.

Pomme de Terre — Clear, crappie fishing excellent, bass fair.

Lake of the Ozarks — Water temperature in low 80s, fishing slow.

Kiwanis Majors Win Championship

Kiwanis majors copped the city championship Thursday night with a 17-5 victory over Sedalia Ice majors.

The winning pitcher for the Kiwanis club was Herb Jones, who allowed one hit and struck out 13 batters. Jones also contributed a three run homer, a two run homer, and two doubles. He drove in 10 of Kiwanis' 17 runs. Larry Brownfield was the losing hurler. Numerous ice errors threw away their chances for the win.

In the semi-final round of the C and B League city championship tourney, Optimist C's whipped Moose C's 12-5. Kim Anderson was the winner on the mound for Optimist, with Don Vinson taking the loss.

The B League victory went to Ice, with an 8-6 tally over Lions. Earl Buckner was the victorious hurler, while Bill Ballance waiked away with the defeat. Craig

Sharp slammed a home run for Ice with one man on in that game.

In the final round in the B and C Leagues tonight, Optimist C's will clash with Kiwanis C's, and Ice B's will play Elks B's.

Babe Ruth Tournament This Weekend

The eight game Babe Ruth city tournament will begin this weekend on the Liberty Park diamond. Playing first round games will be all the Sedalia Babe Ruth teams.

The tourney will begin Saturday night unless the semi-pro tournament needs an extra game Saturday night to decide the championship. In that event, all the games will be moved one day forward.

In first round games Saturday, Optimist is scheduled to face Western Auto at 6:30 p.m., with Hillcrest Lanes to play Brown Supply at 8:30 p.m. Then Sunday, Rotary will play Demand Shoes at 1:30 p.m. and Adco will meet Freese Dairy at 3:30 p.m.

The winners of the Optimist-Western Auto game and the Rotary-Demand game will clash at 6:30 p.m. Monday, with the winners in the Hillcrest-Brown game and Adco-Freese game to play at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The losers Monday will play for third place at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the championship game between Monday night winners scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Adco took the season championship of the American League, while Freese Dairy was the champ in the Nationals. These two teams met in a playoff game Aug. 3, with Adco taking the win in that game, 8-2. These two teams are bracketed to meet again in a first round game Sunday afternoon in the city tourney.

From Childhood

Segregation a Way of Life To Whites In Deep South

EDITOR'S NOTE — What it is like to be a white Southerner today, a man of reason who is trapped by his own instincts and past but who knows integration must come? Tenth in a special Associated Press series on the integration crisis.

By REILMAN MORIN

ATLANTA (AP)—For 70 years after Reconstruction, every Southerner was born into a segregated society.

Segregation was his way of life, deeply rooted in his consciousness. Moreover, it was legal. In 1896, the doctrine of "separate-but-equal" was tested, and the U.S. Supreme Court held it to be constitutional.

Some may have felt twinges of conscience, even so.

Ralph McGill, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, has written: "The more sensitive Southerner often is self-embarrassed by a realization that he has accepted unquestionably some aspect of his community life which he rejects. But nonetheless, he is a part of what he has met, and been. And the past, in tales of his grandparents, his great-aunts and uncles, has been in his ears from birth."

In 1954, another Supreme Court reversed the earlier ruling. It held that "separate educational facilities are inherently unequal."

Southern lawyers and politicians had taken note of a series of court orders that put individual Negroes in some Southern schools, but the man on the street was not prepared for integration.

Overnight, in effect, he was told that he must do a mental about-face, change his attitudes and abandon beliefs he had always held.

Even where the effort was made—nobody can say how many southerners made it—this was no easy task.

In the South, racial barriers are going down. Schools, other public facilities and business establishments are being desegregated. What are the feelings of the Southerner as he sees the old patterns of life crumbling around him?

There is no one answer.

At one end of the spectrum are men like Govs. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Ross Barnett of Mississippi, fiercely defending the old order. A legion of Southerners applauds them.

At the other are men like Hodding Carter, editor of the Greenville, Miss., Delta-Democrat, Ralph McGill and others who are less well known for their opposition to segregation. Carter and McGill receive bales of letters, some favorable, more abusive.

Between the poles of thought, you find:

—The Southerner who opposes integration, but believes in law and order. Reluctantly, he says the courts must be obeyed.

—The person who says, "We were all getting along fine until outsiders came in and stirred up the Negroes. If the outsiders would go away, the Negroes would be perfectly happy again."

—The man who says that, since the Supreme Court reversed itself once on segregation, it may do so again sometime. He wants the 1954 ruling tested, again and again.

For years, the South has been working aggressively to attract industry. The businessman knows—possibly from experience—that violence will hinder the drive. So, although segregationists, some advocate accommodation with Negro demands.

The situation for the Southern college student often is similar to that of the businessman. It may gall him to see Negroes on the campus. But graduation is more important and he doesn't want to jeopardize that.

Some thoughtful, sincere persons in the South are deeply troubled, wrestling with conscience.

A divinity student candidly acknowledges that he had been strongly prejudiced against Negroes. After he began studying for the clergy, he concluded that he could not reconcile his prejudice with his religion. "It was very difficult but I believe I can say now that I have freed myself from those prejudices," he says.

A woman commenting on racial disturbances in a nearby city, says: "When the troubles started, I tried to imagine myself in the position of a Negro. I tried to see things from this point of view. Frankly, it was a shock. But it still seems to me that if I were a Negro, it would be better to try to elevate my own race, not lose myself in another race."

This dovetails with the position of Southerners who deny any prejudice toward the Negro but say, "Race-mixing is not the answer to the problem. For both races, it is better to develop separately."

Negro unemployment, nationally, is more than double the figure for the whites. He said, "I've lived all my life with Negroes and I know that when they're idle they tend to get in trouble. Give them something to do and you won't have all this trouble."

In Tuskegee, Ala., Negro leaders say there are enough registered Negro voters to elect Negroes to public office in the Community. How are the whites reacting?

"We don't know what to expect," said a city councilman.

An executive of the Tuskegee Civic Association, a Negro organization, said, "I think there are some white people who feel they can live with it. It's hard to say how many."

Atlanta has gone further than most Southern cities in desegregating. A waitress in an upper bracket restaurant says she has seen only one "incident." Two white couples left in the middle of dinner, when Negroes were seated at adjoining table. How does she feel about waiting on Negroes? "I don't mind," she says. "The kind who come in here are just like anyone else."

However, placard-carrying segregationists picket an Atlanta restaurant that has integrated. This is a painful example of the situation confronting Southern businessmen. They get it in the neck from both sides.

Finally, the Southerner is watching with the keenest interest as Negro demonstrations spread to the North.

"Now the Yankees are getting a taste of the problem," he says. "They're going to see that finding a solution isn't as simple as they thought."

Private Detective To

Enforce Blue Laws

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (AP)—A private detective agency has been hired to supplement this resort's police in enforcing the Sunday closing law. Mayor B. Thomas Waldman announced Thursday.

"Our local detectives are just too well known by the amusement men and storekeepers to seek out violators," Waldman said.

This community has enforced Sunday closing laws since its founding from a Methodist camp meeting in 1879.

SANTA'S HELPER—The toy that turns out toys bids for a high position on Santa's lists next fall. Children can manufacture small toys from custom molds or molds of their own making, by the vacuum-forming process. Sheet plastic is the modeling medium. Modelers and lab workers, too, may find use for the device, manufactured in Hawthorne, Calif.

J. Edward Day Steps Out of Political Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—J. Edward Day steps out of political life today after 2½ years as postmaster general.

On his last day on the job there wasn't even a promising rumor afloat as to who will succeed him.

Informed sources said President Kennedy hasn't decided on a successor. Speculation arose that the new postmaster general might be a Negro—first ever to hold a Cabinet post.

When Kennedy took office he first offered the job to Negro Rep. William L. Dawson, D-Ill., but Dawson turned it down. The President is known to want to put a Negro in his Cabinet before leaving office. He had earmarked Robert C. Weaver, housing administrator, for the Cabinet, but that plan fell through when Congress refused to create a Cabinet-level department of urban affairs.

Carl Reiner's 'Rug'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—High level discussions have been convened and the off-again, on-again status of Carl Reiner's rug has finally been resolved.

Reiner, after many and profitable seasons as a thick-thatched television comedian, created the "Dick Van Dyke Show" a couple of years back and became its producer. At that time, he asserted with considerable relief, that he planned to put his rug—or toupee—into mothballs, once retired behind the cameras.

The announcement proved as premature as Reiner's baldness. Recently viewers have been seeing a lot of him—with his sparse head covering revealed—as a guest star on the Steve Allen, Johnny Carson and Art Linkletter shows. Then, without warning he's turned up with a full, lovely head of hair in commercials plugging a motion picture he wrote.

Reiner, in addition to his other talents, shares with Bing Crosby the distinction of being forthright about his thinning locks.

Seated comfortably in his office on the lot where the series is again in production, Reiner explained his problem:

"I'd just as soon leave the thing off all the time," he said, "but I keep being asked to use it, by the producer of a movie or by a sponsor. So we finally sat down for a high level talk: My wife and my best friends, Martin Landau and his wife.

"We decided henceforth to treat each appearance individually and on the requirements of each job. For instance, I won't wear it to openings, but I might wear it for a—say—Steve Allen appearance."

Reiner said he thought of wearing his toupee when he attended the Emmy awards ceremonies two years ago, when his show was a candidate for some statuettes.

"But I decided against it," he admitted. "I thought that if I showed up with the rug, people might think I was cocky about my prospects of winning. Actually, I thought Nat Hiken and 'Car 54' would get it."

The show won awards that year—and last season, too.

The Van Dyke Show production now is proceeding smoothly into its third season.

The comedy series follows "Beverly Hillsbillies" on Wednesday nights and starting in September, the two rival networks have aimed two of their biggest guns on the hour in an effort to knock out these two very popular shows.

The CBS pair will be up against ABC's "Ben Casey" and NBC's new "Espionage" series, tough competition.

The Glynis Johns-Keith Andes comedy on this week's CBS "Vacation Playhouse" was the pilot firm for the forthcoming CBS "Glynis series"—and a thoroughly uninspiring preview of things to come. All three networks are planning massive coverage, with special news shows and documentaries, of the current integration crisis. ABC obviously intends to keep a sharp eye on its "100 Grand" quiz show—the executive

In-laws Ordered To Leave Couple Alone

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago judge, who believes interfering in-laws cause half of all domestic breakups, has ordered the parents of a young suburban man and his bride not to communicate with them in an effort to save the couple's marriage.

Judge Charles R. Barrett of Superior Court ordered the parents of Sandra Lee, 21, and Richard H. Pearson Jr., 33, of Lyons to leave the couple alone for 90 days.

The judge issued his unusual order Thursday after an attorney for Pearson told the court that Mrs. Pearson's parents had advised her not to clean house, cook meals, dress or do anything without their consent.

Mrs. Pearson, who had entered the courtroom to ask for temporary support pending divorce action, left it arm in arm with her husband.

South Korea Develops A Navy

WITH THE 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION, Korea (AP)—This front-line cavalry division has developed a "navy" to hunt Communist North Korean patrols trying to infiltrate into United Nations territory.

First Cavalry Division troopers continuously cruise the Imjin River, which the Communists must cross en route south.

The division, which switched from horses to tanks many years ago, got serious about the navy business 10 days ago when Communist activity increased along the American sector of the 151-mile demilitarized zone across Korea.

Patrolling the river is the job of Company A, 8th Engineer Battalion, which boasts of being "closer to the bad guys than any other engineering unit in the whole U.S. Army."

This slogan is the favorite of the company commander, Capt. James Z. Metalios, 29, of Tuckahoe, N.Y.

"Joe Communist is out there and knows we're out there looking for him, says Metalios.

The fleet ranges from small assault boats, which can be paddled into dark coves, to 27-foot power boats that carry six troopers up and down the river at high speed. Rifleman are furnished by the 8th and 9th Cavalry Regiments that have 15 miles of the Imjin in their sectors.

The man in charge of the navy, S. Sgt. Osko Baccus, 33, of Security, Colo., has had little experience with boats.

"Once in a while we got embarrassed by getting stuck on a sandbar," he said, "but now we've got a pretty nice little fleet here."

His first assistant is a former truck driver, Sp. 4 Gilbert Spearman, 28, of Fayetteville, N.C.

One boat crewman, Pfc. Carl Sayers, 18, of Seymour, Conn., said he had never been shot at by Communists but "drew some machine-gun fire from American troops the other night."

Some troopers, understandably unaccustomed to seeing a navy in the middle of a cavalry division, have been a little trigger-happy.

House Defeats Effort

To Reduce Temporary Debt Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House defeated soundly Thursday a Republican effort to trim the temporary national debt ceiling by $2 billion and voted to keep it at $309 billion through Nov. 30.

GOP members pegged their fight to a contention that a reduction would be an economy mandate to Congress while it still is considering spending bills. Democrats said what is involved is paying bills already incurred. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the real effect would be to cramp the Treasury's freedom in its campaign to keep and attract funds in the United States and thus ease the balance of payments problem.

The battle was not fought strictly along party lines, however. In the 229-164 vote rejecting the Republican move, 19 Democrats and 145 Republicans voted no and 213 Democrats and 16 GOP members voted yes.

Passage vote was 221-175, with only two ayes by Republicans. Reps. William H. Ayres of Ohio and Howard H. Baker of Tennessee. The measure now goes to the Senate.

One Republican member of Mills' committee, Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri, said it appeared the Treasury had deliberately held the debt high by borrowing because it ended the fiscal year on June 30 with $11 billion cash on hand.

The Kennedy administration had been expected earlier to ask Congress to push the $309-billion restraint higher this summer. But instead, it sought the three-month extension while Congress acts on tax-cut proposals and on spending measures, so the outlook will be clearer and a realistic figure can be picked.

Test Treaty Is Signed By Several

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly one-third of the nations of the world subscribed to the limited atomic test ban treaty Thursday on the first day it was open for general signing.

Diplomats queued up in Washington, London and Moscow for the honor of pledging their governments as associated charter members of the U.S.-British-Soviet pact to outlaw all nuclear explosions except those under ground.

India's envoy was the first to sign at the Spiridonovka Palace in Moscow, where the signing ceremonies for 22 states were completed first because of the time difference.

The London count of first-day signatories was 23. Allowing for many duplications, the day's total of signatories came to 34, making a total of 37, counting the originators who signed last Monday.

The State Department said 62 of the world's 114 nations already have announced their intention to sign and more than 100 are expected to do so eventually. The treaty, which is open to all states, is expected to pick up more signatures Friday and Saturday.

In Northeast Haiti

Increasing Indications Point to Normal Times

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Indications that northeast Haiti has returned to normal increased Thursday. A U.S.-owned oil company resumed operations and American evacuees started back to their jobs near the scene of a reported invasion.

But Haiti's "tellelidi" — Creole for rumor circuit — still spoke of fighting in the north, although less extravagantly than before.

A spokesman for Esso Standard Oil said the company's two bulk plants near Fort Liberté now were working normally. He said his information tended to confirm the government's claim that only a hit-and-run force had been involved.

The Miami (Fla.) News reported two travelers in the Cap-Haitien area said Gen. Leon Cantave and a band of 15 landed in Haiti on Monday morning and retreated at about 2 p.m. A Port au Prince dispatch to the newspaper said the invaders stole two automobiles, drove to Fort Liberté, killed a soldier on guard duty and then left the country.

The Haitian government placed the number of invaders at 100 and exiled Haitians placed it at several times that figure.

Americans who were evacuated to Cap-Haitien from a sisal plantation in the Fort Liberté area also were reported going back to their jobs Thursday. The government Wednesday reported smashing a force of exile invaders at Fort Liberté about 10 miles from the border with the Dominican Republic.

Diplomatic circles here were inclined to regard the government's victory claim with some reserve. The fact that no word has been heard from Gen. Cantave, reported leader of the invasion, contributed to this.

There was disbelief that an officer of Cantave's stature would have ventured on an invasion without an adequate force and assurances of support inside Haiti both from civilians and the military.

English Train Held Up

About $2.8 Million Haul Is Made by Train Robbers

CHEDDINGTON, England (AP) — A gang of masked bandits ambushed a mail train Thursday and escaped with an estimated $2.8 million in cash and gems. They pulled off the world's greatest train robbery in just 15 minutes.

Sacks of money and registered mail including diamond shipments were carted away in the predawn holdup after the bandits tricked the train into stopping on a lonely stretch of countryside before it reached the Cheddington station.

Police and postal authorities first estimated the gang at 30 men. But later, a police spokesman said it probably numbered only 15, although the bandits had to deal with more than 75 persons aboard.

The brash and brazen robbery jolted the nation with its clever organization and split-second timing. Scotland Yard joined other security agencies in mounting one of Britain's largest manhunts. But hours after the holdup, there were no reports of any leads.

Postmaster General Reginald Bevins cut short his vacation, estimated the loss at 1 million pounds ($2.8 million) and offered a 10,000-pound ($28,000) reward for information leading to the gang's arrest.

An insurance company posted a 25,000-pound ($70,000) reward on behalf of one of the several banks that lost money. Officials said the banks must bear the loss of the bank notes because they had not yet reached their destination.

Police used tracker dogs and threw up roadblocks around Cheddington, 40 miles northwest of London, where the gang struck after faking a red signal to stop the 10-car train at a rural junction.

Of comparable robberies, the biggest cash haul in the United States came from the robbery of a mail truck last Aug. 14 outside Plymouth, Mass. That loot totaled $1,551,277.

The train was en route from Glasgow to London. It carried only mail and a staff of 75 postal workers. They were sorting letters and parcels as the express stopped at the isolated Sears crossing just after 3 a.m.

Fireman David Whitby peeked ahead at the red signal and clambered down from the locomotive to investigate.

Five men, masked by stockings pulled over their heads, were waiting for him.

"One of them pushed me down," Whitby said. "Another put his hand over my mouth. He told me: 'If you shout, I'll kill you.'"

They marched him back to the engine. The engineer, Jack Mills, was blackjacked and the "next thing I knew the gang was handcuffing us together," Whitby related.

Another group of bandits uncoupled the front two coaches from the remainder of the train. Whitby and Mills then were ordered to take the engine and leading coaches about a mile down the track to a bridge over a country road.

More masked men appeared and unloaded the mail bags. They took about 10.

Waives Hearing

S-Sgt. Herbert Baker, Randolph Field, Tex., charged with felonious assault without malice, in connection with the shooting of himself and his wife at 219 East St. Louis Tuesday night, waived preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday morning, and the case was bound over to Circuit Court for trial.

Magistrate Judge Frank Armstrong set the release bond at $2,000. On failure to meet the bond, Baker was returned to the Pettis County jail.

Kennedy Calls for Speedy Approval for Test Treaty

Want Revisions

Study of Stock Market Finished

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special committee of the Securities and Exchange Commission urged Thursday a tightening of industry controls in almost every phase of stock trading and sharply rapped some mutual funds' dealings with brokers and the public.

The special study group finished its two-year investigation of the securities industry by detailing revisions which it said are needed in the so-called self-regulating mechanisms, the stock exchanges and trade organizations. There was no evidence of manipulation or illegal conduct in the steep drop in stock prices in May 1962, the report said, and no single factor could be singled out as a reason for the decline.

Most of the proposals in the 1,700-page third and final installment of the study could be put into effect at any time by the industry, or by the SEC.

In New York, a spokesman for the New York Stock Exchange said the entire report is under study.

In a letter to Congress, the SEC gave a general endorsement of the 6,400-page report.

The commission said there are no definite plans for new legislation other than a noncontroversial — but important — bill which has passed the Senate, and a proposal for tighter controls on over-the-counter stock price quotations. This recommendation will be sent to Congress next year.

The study group previously had said there is no widespread fraud in the industry but that considerable cleanup is needed to close some loopholes and provide proper protection for the nation's 17 million stockholders.

Many of those millions own mutual funds, the subject of one of Thursday's four chapters. The committee said some of these funds reached the public through part-time, untrained salesmen who use a presentation that is "highly emotional and dramatic in tone, playing on such factors as fear, pride and patriotism."

Eight College Courses Set For This Fall

To Be Conducted At Smith-Cotton Under CMS Plan

Eight college courses for credit applying toward degrees are offered in extension classes this fall at Smith-Cotton High School, Dr. Harold L. Young, director of field services for Central Missouri State College, announced Thursday.

Arrangements for the extension classes were completed the past week with Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of the Sedalia public schools.

Dr. Young said that classes scheduled to start in mid-September will meet evenings starting at 6:30 p.m. Most courses carry three semester hours credit. Registration is set for the opening class session for each course.

Meanwhile, any further information about the sessions, including course descriptions and costs can be obtained from the director of field services on the Warrensburg campus.

Instructors from the Warrensburg campus will be assigned to the extension classes early in September, Dr. Young said.

Fall semester offerings include the following courses: Elementary accounting 11-00, 3 hours; public speaking 11-10, 3 hours; early world civilization 14-00, 2 hours; games and play for elementary schools, 23-00, 2 hours; American masterpieces 22-00, 3 hours; general psychology 13-00, 3 hours; advanced educational psychology 43-00, 3 hours.

Seven courses will be offered during the winter semester beginning next February, Dr. Young said.

'Wolfman' Hunt Ends In Arrests

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police arrested five boys armed with air rifles Thursday who said they were hunting "The Wolfman"—a disheveled, full-bearded man with a Shakespearean accent who roams a system of tunnels beneath downtown St. Louis.

Major use of the tunnels is storage of old railroad cars abandoned on little-used tracks of the Illinois Terminal Railroad. They are attractive to adventurous boys and homeless hoboes.

Harry Hart, manager of a large building above one of the tunnels, says boys love to explore the tunnels and "when we catch them they always say they are looking for 'The Wolfman.' I don't doubt it. I've seen the fellow myself."

"I found him one evening in an old parlor car. When I approached he seemed frightened but addressed me in the rich, resonant tones of a Shakespearean actor."

Hart said the man politely departed when asked but had since returned several times.

Police and watchmen frequently pursue the boys but they usually escape via the tunnel's maze of steel supports, crossbeams and a steep concrete retaining wall which offers an exit or entrance to the tunnel system.

The boys arrested after a hot search through the old tunnels were 10 to 14 years old. They were booked for violation of the juvenile code by trespassing.

Tax Board to Meet

The Pettis County Tax Board of Appeals will meet in the Pettis County Courthouse Monday and Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to noon each day.

10-Point Message Is Sent to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy sent the limited test ban treaty to the Senate on Thursday with a call for speedy approval "to make the most of the present opportunity" to "achieve a more secure and peaceful world."

In a 10-point message, Kennedy said the security of the United States and of all mankind would be increased by adoption of the proposed ban on nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in space and under water.

While the President formally submitted the U.S.-British-Soviet treaty to the Senate, nearly one-third of the 114 other nations of the world were signing it in ceremonies in Washington, Moscow and London.

At the State Department envoys from 31 states queued up to sign the treaty and more were due in Friday.

Ratification by the U. S. Senate is the key to whether the treaty will take effect. Ratification is deemed automatic in the Soviet Union and Britain. But the treaty does not take effect until all three original signatories ratify.

Kennedy administration authorities seem confident the Senate will approve by the required two-thirds majority of those voting. Committee hearings start next Monday and a final vote is expected after floor debate in September.

In his 1,500-word message accompanying the short treaty document, Kennedy said: "It is rarely possible to recapture missed opportunities to achieve a more secure and peaceful world. The United States should move swiftly to make the most of the present opportunity and approve the pending treaty."

In saying the ban against all except underground atomic explosions would boost U. S. and world security, the President sought to counter a main objection to the pact.

He said that while the United States could make further progress in atomic weaponry by testing in the atmosphere, so could the Soviet Union. And if still other countries develop their own atomic force through atmospheric testing, this spread of nuclear weapons "might well lead to a weakening of our security," he said.

Weather Instruments Moved to 'New Home'

Official weather information furnished The Democrat-Capital since 1937 by the State Fair Floral Company's greenhouse on South Limit avenue ceased at 1 p.m. Thursday. Such information will come from the same instruments, however, as they are being moved to the residence of N. U. Renshaw, 1208 Liberty Park.

The greenhouse is located on property recently sold to W. E. Bingham. Operators of State Fair Floral company have had no comments regarding discontinuing operation of the greenhouse, nor has the new property owner revealed when possession of the property will be taken.

It has been intimated that the greenhouse will close Aug. 15, but this information has not been confirmed.

Baby Is Better

Breathing Device To Aid JFK's Son

BOSTON (AP) — An enormous breathing device — the only one of its kind — was put to use Thursday to aid the baby son of President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

One-day-old Patrick Bouvier Kennedy's condition was listed as improved but still serious. Doctors at the Children's Medical Center placed the baby, born 5½ weeks prematurely on Cape Cod Wednesday, into a three-compartment device that measures 31 feet long and 8 feet in diameter.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger told newsmen at 6 p.m. EDT the child showed immediate improvement.

Earlier in the afternoon, the President telephoned Mrs. Kennedy, 34, who is recovering from the Caesarean section delivery at Otis Air Force Base Hospital, that the baby was "slightly improved."

Present plans call for the President to remain in Boston Thursday night, as he did Wednesday night following the transfer of the child to Boston.

Jobless Pay Exceeds June Rate Locally

Benefits Paid Are Down 10.9% Over July 1962

Initial claims, often an index to new unemployment, totaled 548 during July in the four county area (Pettis, Johnson, Morgan and Benton) served by the Sedalia state employment office; up 13 per cent compared to June 1963 and down 10.9 per cent compared to July 1962. The increase was primarily due to temporary lay offs in manufacturing in Morgan and Johnson Counties.

Weekly claims totaled 1674 during this same period, up 10.4 per cent compared to June 1963 and up 2.3 per cent compared to July 1962. Benefits paid totaled $34,209.48 during July compared to $28,175.60 during June, an increase of 17.6 per cent.

New applications for employment in July decreased 45 per cent compared to June; non-agricultural job openings increased 40 per cent and non-agricultural placements increased 35.5 per cent. The increase in both job openings and placements due primarily to new hiring by local industries after vacation.

Farm job openings received during July decreased, however, placements were about the same as June. Also during July verified 81 placements through the volunteer farm placement representatives located in the four county area.

On state level, for the sixth straight month statewide unemployment insurance benefit payments to out of work Missourians declined, the Missouri Division of Employment Security reported today.

LeRoy Schantz, division director, said the state's jobless received $2,407,112 during July, which is $162,936 less than the $2,570,048 in June. While the monthly benefit total was down 6.3 per cent, it was up 6 per cent, or $15,443, more than a year ago.

The July decline in unemployment insurance payments showed a continual improvement in job opportunities, the director said.

Salter said at the news conference that "a halt in the downward trend in the baby's condition" occurred late Thursday afternoon.

The huge breathing device was brought into action at 4:41 p.m. to force oxygen into the baby's system. "During the late morning and early afternoon the condition worsened," Salinger said, and attention then turned to the big high-pressure chamber.

Salinger said emphatically that no operation is being performed on the baby.

He said the giant breathing device has been used at the hospital 28 times in the past year or so. It is leased by the hospital from the Harvard School of Public Health.

Kennedy was beaming broadly as he walked out of the building where the device is located and talked happily with Salinger, then turned and sauntered back into the main hospital section again.

Shortly after, the President left for his hotel where he will spend the night.

Golden Silence of Experts

In America today, the man who masters a specialty of major consequence, like space or nuclear or military science, is sometimes judged to be an expert in fields beyond his own.

To some degree this has perhaps always been so in this country. When industrialists were building America in earlier decades, they were listened to on everything under the sun.

Yet there is great danger in imagining that the man with expertise in one realm is thereby qualified to make broad political, economic or moral judgments.

For instance, the scientist who works at improving our nuclear weapons is not by that fact necessarily fit to tell us when and how, as a nation, to use them or to say we should not use them at all.

Similarly, the general who spends a great deal of his time fathoming the military tactics of communist nations is not by that alone qualified to judge best what we should do about Red tactics in the political and diplomatic world.

A number of prominent men get into this problem in a new document prepared for the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, a Ford Foundation offshoot.

Charles Frankel, professor of philosophy at Columbia university, says most political decisions involve weighing evidence from a wide range of different specialties. He adds:

"This means that even those who are experts in one field become laymen the moment they move into another field."

"No one today can be an expert in all the fields that he should ideally be... to make public decisions."

What counts in such decisions, says Frankel, is not "omnipotent knowledge but something closer to wisdom and common sense, and an understanding of when and where and for what reasons to rely on the advice of experts."

As another contributor to the document, Arkansas' Sen. J. William Fulbright, observes, this kind of judgment is especially required where matters of morals are concerned.

"There are no experts in morals," says Frankel.

A subject apart is how to get wise, broad, common sense judgments from both the rank and file electorate and the political leadership in a democracy.

It is enough here to make the one big point: "Expertise" does not transfer. The major public decisions involving our goals, our moral bent, our pace of effort, our priorities in national life, are not the province of the narrow specialist — however supreme he is in his chosen field.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Green Pastures, 214 East Third street, has opened under new management, Earl "Potts" Evans, well known Sedalian, having taken over the business. Mrs. Nellie Monegan's three piece orchestra will furnish music. Evans was formerly with the Nafziger Baking and the Purity Bakeries. For 30 years he has been associated with baseball in Sedalia.

FORTY YEARS AGO

L. P. Andrews, manager of the City Water Company was host to 75 Sedalians at a chicken dinner served in the open at the waterworks park at which time he proposed that the waterworks plant and equipment and entire holdings could be purchased by the City of Sedalia and operated as a municipal plant under the direction of a board of commissioners. A committee was named to present the proposal to the mayor and city council with the suggestion the latter appoint a committee of 15 citizens to further investigate the purchase plan. Those on the original committee were: Charles E. Yeater, chairman; Ira E. Melton, Robert M. Johns, Grant Crawford, C. E. Messerly, Sr. and H. L. Terry.

Khrushchev Faces Red Army Problem

(Editor's Note — Yesterday Drew Pearson described some of Kennedy's problems with the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Today, he tells of similar military problems faced by Mr. Khrushchev.)

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Most Americans don't realize it, but it's probable that Nikita Khrushchev has just about as much trouble with his military leaders as does John F. Kennedy.

It's not unusual that civilian chiefs have trouble with their military. De Gaulle has faced open army rebellion. The Argentine government has been kicked out several times by its military. The Peruvian military threw out one government last year and decided elections their own way this year, while the President of Ecuador is the latest to feel the bite of his military men.

But somehow the world doesn't think of the top man of the Communist world as having to worry about his military. President Tito of Yugoslavia, in an unusually frank interview last summer told me, however, that this was not true, that Khrushchev did have to listen to the Red Army.

One indication of this fact came in 1959 when Khrushchev announced that the Soviet was spending too much money on arms, that big land armies were out of date and announced a cut of about 2,000,000 men. This also entailed a cut of about 250,000 officers.

And the howl that went up from them was just as bitter, though not as vocal as that which has come from the U. S. admirals when the civilian chiefs at the Pentagon proposed reducing airplane carriers, or when Secretary McNamara cut the budget for the B-70.

In brief, military men are about the same the world over, and the Red Army protest was so strong that Khrushchev abandoned his plans for a cut.

Red Army on Nuclear Tests

I got a further indication that the Red Army was potent two years ago when Khrushchev told me that he had received letters from army men urging that in view of the Berlin crisis, he not demobilize the class ready for demobilization. Khrushchev said he thought he would follow their advice.

He also told me that he was under pressure from the Red Army to resume nuclear testing. The Red Army, he said, believed that Russia was following behind the United States. He did not tell me what he planned to do, but about a week later, he did resume testing.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff last week told President Kennedy that they were afraid Russia would get ahead of the United States during any test ban.

During the Cuban crisis it was reported by Ambassador Foy Kohler that the Red Army

DENVER POST: Tell It To Fidel.—Fidel Castro has threatened to attack British and French islands in the Caribbean on which he, Castro, says Cuban exiles are maintaining bases.

We are in no position to know whether such bases exist. But Castro's statement stirs the spirit. It is exhilarating to think that somewhere there may be a government that is not afraid of hurting the Communist dictator's feelings, as our government seems at times to be.

Perhaps Castro is just talking to scare the Western European powers into taking extra precautions against the establishment of such bases, or perhaps he is just making propaganda. He may, also, unintentionally, be putting the Kennedy administration on the spot, because the administration is on record with the warning that it will act to counter military operations by Castro against others in this hemisphere.

In any case, we hope the British and French will set Castro straight on one point: That they aren't frightened. That would be refreshing.

The Depths of An American Dilemma

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's very vagueness about two of his constant headaches, France and Red China, one an ally and one an enemy, show the depths of an American dilemma which may last for years.

1. The Chinese Dilemma—What to expect when the Red Chinese have nuclear bombs, although they may make plenty of trouble before they do, and what to expect when the present generation of old-time leaders is gone.

2. The French Dilemma—How to get along now with President De Gaulle, in order to keep the Western Alliance together, and then what to expect when this old-timer is also gone.

Last Monday, a few days after the United States, Britain and Russia agreed to a limited nuclear test ban, De Gaulle said he would not join so long as they continue to produce nuclear arms. They didn't agree to not.

He also said he wanted no part of anything else. This was Premier Khrushchev's suggestion of a nonaggression treaty between the Western partners and their opposite number, Russia and its European satellites.

Ever since Monday—and it is understood the orders came from the White House—the State Department has clammed up on the subject of De Gaulle, saying practically nothing about his obstructionism.

Reporters were told President Kennedy would do the talking at his news conference Thursday. He talked but in a very real sense said nothing, giving no indication this country has yet figured out how to get De Gaulle to play ball.

What he seemed to express was bafflement.

Was this country considering giving some of its nuclear secrets to De Gaulle, secrets which might make it unnecessary for him to test in order to persuade him not to? Kennedy glossed over this.

He said what was already long known: That De Gaulle had turned down this country's offer of Polaris missiles, an offer the British accepted. He said this country had made some suggestions to De Gaulle about cooperation but got no reply.

But even if the icy De Gaulle melted a bit, cooperated, and stopped being a problem, this country couldn't even guess at what might come when De Gaulle, now 72, is out of the picture.

The French government has been the most chaotic and unstable in Western Europe since the war. De Gaulle had to come out of retirement and take over the presidency to put it on its feet. That may be strictly temporary.

When he finally departs any one of a number of things may happen: More chaos, civil war, a dictatorship of the right or left.

The Red Chinese, breaking with Russia and determined to make their own nuclear weapons, not only refuse to join the test ban agreement but call the whole thing a fraud.

Kennedy said he thought it a menacing situation that (1) China's population, biggest in the world, is exploring, (2) it is almost surrounded by smaller and weaker nations, (3) it wants war to achieve world communism, and

(4) in 10 years or so it may be a nuclear power.

Kennedy considers all these factors together a "potentially more dangerous situation than any we faced since the end of the war." So he doesn't know what to expect, now or later, but particularly later when China has nuclear weapons.

The original Chinese Communists, who began their lifelong campaign for the domination of China in the 1920s, are all old or elderly men now. They're dying out.

These were the fanatic revolutionaries who sacrificed everything for a dream. They've split with Khrushchev for even talking about getting along with the West.

Will their successors, now that the revolution has been accomplished and China taken, feel less like fanatics and more like managers and therefore, like Khrushchev, be more inclined to preserve their gains than risk them in a war?

Such a new generation of leaders might mean a less belligerent China. But nobody, including Kennedy, is betting on it. He didn't even mention it.

Starch Re-used Zippers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I have discovered that if you are reusing a zipper saved from a wornout garment, it will sew in like a new one after a dip in hot starch. Iron while still damp, using a cloth over it. — L. M.

GIRLS — If you have nothing else to starch, I am sure you would not want to make hot starch for one little zipper. I found that spray starch works just fine. Iron dry in the same manner as suggested by L.M. and the zipper tapes will have as much body as when new. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When we bought our chest-type freezer, it was put in the basement near my automatic washer and dryer,

At the time, I had no idea the freezer was going to be such a laundry aid. The big porcelain top is ideal for starching clothes, dampening the ironing, folding things that come out of the dryer, sorting the ironed clothes and so on. The unfinished dampened things can be stored inside. This accidental placement of the freezer has saved me countless steps up and down the basement stairs. I heartily recommend that anyone with a chest freezer move it to the laundry area. — MRS. M. F. F.

DEAR POLLY — When giving a small child's birthday party at home, place a 9 by 12 plastic drop cloth on the floor or rug under the party table and chairs. This will save your rug or floor when the children accidentally spill food or drink or have any of the usual children's accidents. When the party is over, roll up the drop cloth and throw it away if you like. They can be purchased at most paint or hardware stores for a small sum and are certainly worth the price as a rug protector and time saver. — MRS. E. H.

DEAR POLLY — I always drop a square of nylon netting in my mop water when scrubbing the floor. I can remove shoe marks and scuffs easily by rubbing with the netting. It does not scratch the floor. — MRS. V. K.

DEAR POLLY — So many things we buy today come in plastic bags. I find that after ironing my pillow slips they can easily be kept in pairs by inserting them in some of these bags. At the same time they are saved from discoloring in my linen closet. This also holds true with sheets. — E. F. R.

GIRLS — This might be too much of a good thing for those with big families, where the bed linens scarcely have time to cool on the shelves. It would certainly be wonderful for company-best linens. — POLLY

The Doctor Says

Colitis Is Traced To Person's Emotional Acts

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Are you one of the growing number of persons who has an irritable bowel? Some doctors call it mucous colitis or spastic colitis. But no matter what they call it, it can make you pretty uncomfortable.

Many a so-called stomach-ache or bout of gripping pains is due to an irritable bowel. These pains shift around in the abdomen and tend to come in intermittent spasms. Some of these spasms may make you double-up with pain. Within a few minutes or a few hours you may pass some gas or a thin formed or watery stool and this always gives temporary relief.

This disease is as common as the emotional tension that is its underlying cause. Just about everybody has had it at one time or another. In its chronic persistent form the lower bowel becomes so resentful that it pours out a large amount of mucus.

The food that is eaten is passed through the digestive tract so fast that digestion is not complete and the victim loses weight. A vicious cycle is set up in that the pain, bloating, and abdominal distress have a bad effect on one's disposition. Emotional tension mounts, tempers flare up and you are off on another round of spasms.

Treatment must aim at breaking this cycle by soothing the nerves and soothing the colon. First of all it is important for the victim to know that there is no connection between this disease and ulcerative colitis or cancer. It may, however, be necessary to make sure that there isn't a chronic dysentery due to ameba that will keep the trouble going until all the amebas are cleaned out.

Every effort must then be made to resolve any stressful situations that may be aggravating the trouble. This is often the hardest part of the treatment.

Meanwhile, you cannot neglect the bowel itself. All laxatives must be avoided and for a while at least laxative foods such as vegetables, fruits, nuts, pickles, jams, and spices must be omitted from the diet. Skimmed milk, cheese, well-cooked meat, eggs, crackers, and bread or toast should constitute the main elements of the diet. Weak tea should be substituted for coffee.

Some drugs such as barbiturates may help to soothe both the nerves and the bowel. They should be taken for a short period only and not without strict medical supervision because they are habit-forming.

If, as a result of treatment, you find that you have become constipated you should use an enema of eight ounces of plain warm water held for at least five minutes before passing. In addition you should cautiously add a small portion of cooked green vegetable or cooked fruit to your daily diet.

The amount can be gradually increased as you continue to improve but at the first sign of a recurrence of spasms go back to a bland diet.

Some people have had to follow a rigid diet for years to keep the spasms under control because of a difficult situation at home or at work that cannot be readily resolved. That's why, if you can't learn to control your emotions as an adult, it is doubly important that you seek help in teaching your children to control theirs. After all, you wouldn't want them to go through life with colitis, too.

ing what extra ammunition they had to guerrillas.

Two months ago, he started disarming military detachments he felt had proved "unreliable."

In recent weeks, Fidel has been using Russian troops for this purpose. He's made another discovery: Militiamen can't be depended upon to disarm other militiamen.

U.S. officials believe that Castro eventually will be forced to disband the militia entirely and build up his regular army.

According to Cuban exiles, the unreliability of the militia has caused Fidel to use Russian troops in fighting the guerrillas. If these exile reports are true, Cuba already has become "another Hungary," something the Kennedy administration vowed it would never permit. U.S. Intelligence officials haven't been able to confirm the reports. However, they do say this:

There have been clashes, even pitched battles, between the Russians and the guerrillas. Whether the Russians attacked the guerrillas, as the exiles insist, or whether the guerrillas attacked the Russians, they don't know. All they do know is that a wing of the naval hospital in East Havana is filled with Russians wounded in combat.

As yet, the resistance to Castro is almost completely unorganized. Only a handful of guerrilla bands have as many as a dozen men. The saboteurs work in groups of three or four. Often the most effective sabotage is done by a single workman, acting completely on his own, without telling even his wife. (Says a U.S. Intelligence official: "They commit sabotage in the French sense of the word; they drop a monkey wrench in the machine.")

Almost without exception, the mass demonstrations have been spontaneous.

One reason is the failure, so far, of a leader to arise, a man with the charisma of Fidel, who can unite the resistance behind him. Another is the effectiveness of Fidel's G-2; it's safer to keep the groups small.

A third reason is the refusal of the United States Government to give the resistance more than dubs and dabs of support. Says a U.S. Intelligence official: "If our government sent arms, ammo and explosives into Cuba, the whole island would blow up. What holds the resistance movement down right now is a lack of weapons."

Next: The Guerrillas and How They Operate.

Castro's Cuba Today

By HAROLD LAVINE
(First of a Series)

WASHINGTON — One night, a factory suddenly bursts into flames; the next, a dozen guerrillas explode into a Soviet military establishment, firing rifles and tommyguns. They kill two of the Russians, then melt away. By morning they are simple guajiros, growing tobacco.

Housewives form a conga line and snake through a town, shouting denunciations of the government in conga rhythm. Workers invent strange ailments to excuse themselves from work. Construction foremen deliberately misplace blueprints and, just as deliberately, forget where they misplaced them. Mechanics insist they can't find what in Heaven's name is wrong with machinery they sabotaged themselves.

Typists in government offices become all thumbs. Guajiros refuse to cut sugar cane. Militiamen refuse to fire on guerrillas or else disappear into the hills to become guerrillas themselves.

A Communist bureaucrat is found in a doorway, crumpled in death. He was on his way home and someone leaped from the doorway to strangle him.

This is the great untold story of Cuba today. It comes from Cuban exiles, from U.S. Intelligence officials, and from what the Intelligence officials call "third sources—governments that still maintain embassies in Havana." They differ on details, but on the basic fact they're in complete accord.

After more than four years, despite his G-2, despite his militia, despite the presence of Russian troops, Fidel Castro has not been able to crush the resistance to his dictatorship. The resistance suffered the worst blow to its morale since the fiasco in the Bay of Pigs when the Kennedy administration cracked down on hit-and-run raids from Florida. Many Cubans who had been working in the underground until then abandoned the struggle in despair. Nevertheless, tens of thousands remain at war with the dictator. And they have the support of angry millions.

Some are fighting with guns and machetes, dynamite and phosphorus; others, with sabotage and slowdowns; still others, simply by failing to show up for work in the morning. Publicly, Fidel dismisses them as "worms." Actually, they are driving him crazy.

To his dismay, Fidel no longer can fully trust his militia to fight back. Early this year, he started rationing ammunition to his militia because he'd discovered that many of the militiamen were giv-

Reuters, the international news agency, was begun in 1849 by a German baron, Paul Julius de Reuters. To bridge a gap at the German-French border in the newly-developed telegraph line, Reuter organized a pigeon-post exchange of news. He later established his news service in London, and relayed news of the American Civil War to Europe. In 1865, Reuters was granted a cable concession between France and the United States.

Versailles Attracts Microfilm Company

New Industry Shot In Arm To the Area

By LARRY EMBRY

This Morgan County seat of 2,047 persons takes the business of luring new industry seriously and its efforts through a trust group paid off this spring when the Microfilm Foto-File Co., Inc., with home offices in Kansas City, Kan., moved its former St. Louis operation here.

Now employing 46 persons, mostly women, the company is already injecting a $10,000 per month payroll into the town's economy. The plant just boosted its operation to two eight-hour shifts and when in full swing late this year will employ 75 to 100 persons.

Microfilming of bulky hospital medical records and a silver reclaiming operation from X-ray film are the basis of the industry.

Managed by Merle Strowmatt, who came to Versailles from St. Louis, the plant microfilms medical records from hospitals all over the nation. Medical case histories of a hospital's many patients rapidly grow into a voluminous amount of records. What to do with these records, which must be retained for future reference, is solved by reduction in the Versailles plant to a tiny 16 mm film strip which can be viewed by means of a projector. The hospital's valuable records are preserved in an easy-to-handle form and storage is reduced to a negligible amount of space.

Strowmatt explained the company's trucks pick up the hospital records, they are brought to the Versailles plant where employees sort them into their proper order and photograph them on microfilm. The microfilm is then returned to the respective hospital for inspection and when approved the bulky records are destroyed by the company. A contract bond policy protects the hospital.

Besides medical records, the company also microfilms hospital X-rays, which in their original form can become just as bulky as case histories. But they too must be preserved for future reference and are placed on 35 mm. film.

The silver reclamation portion of the industry hinges on the valuable amount of the precious metal suspended on each sheet of X-ray film and all types of photographic film for that matter. Through a guarded heat and chemical process, the tons of X-ray film are reduced to a grey substance much like gunpowder. Another heat and chemical process fluxes away the unusable residues and the pure silver—currently valued at about $1.29 per ounce—remains.

Strowmatt points out it requires a phenomenal amount of X-ray film to produce just one ounce of reclaimed silver, but the amount is large enough to spark the industry. The powdered residue from burned X-ray film is handled in ton units and a ton of powder which produces 10,000 to 14,000 ounces of silver is considered very good. The film burns away to roughly 5 per cent of its bulk so the huge amount of film originally handled is easily seen.

Why the company chose Versailles as its new home is evi-

FIRE ASSAY — Merle Strowmatt, manager of the Versailles plant, takes a fire assay on material from burned X-ray film to determine the silver content. He places a small amount of the gunpowder-like material into a small blast furnace and heat and chemicals flux away most of the impurities leaving a silver-lead alloy. Heating this alloy in a bone ash cupel removes the lead and only the silver remains. An equative formula lets personnel know how much silver can be reclaimed from a ton of burned X-ray film.

denced in the aggressiveness of the Versailles Industrial Trust, an organization currently headed by Joe Thomas, a local furniture and appliance merchant.

"The trust group was started in 1956 with local merchants participating at an assessment of $3 per month," Thomas said. "First we helped existing industry and then prepared a printed brochure on Versailles industrial offerings."

As funds accumulated the group was able to acquire 8.2 acres of land located on west Highway 52 between the Morgan County fairgrounds and the city. Sewer and water lines were installed and the tract was ready for a new plant. Microfilm Foto-File was the first taker. The trust group is still angling for more, hopeful for a company which will employ men as the new plant largely utilizes only women personnel.

"The new plant is a real shot in the arm for Versailles," Thomas observed. "We were lucky to get an industry which didn't expect us to provide their building free of charge."

Microfilm Foto-File's principal plant, which is now under construction, is being built to the company's specifications and will be leased by the firm.

Attractiveness of Versailles' industrial site is sure to increase when the relocation of Highway 5 is completed. The new highway, scheduled for completion in 1964, will pass directly beside the 8.2 acre tract. Relocation work is being done by the Menefee Construction Company of Sedalia.

The company's operations at present are located in a steel frame building which will be converted to warehouse use and will also house the silver reclaiming operation and microfilm developing facilities. The new structure, being built by C. W. Dunnaway, a Versailles contractor, will provide space for the microfilming work, offices and some storage.

John V. Prather, Kansas City, Kan., is president of the company, which opened for business in Versailles the first part of May.

'77 Sunset Strip' Gets Overhaul

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The name will be the same—"77 Sunset Strip"—but fans of the five-year-old ABC private-eye hour won't recognize the show when it returns for a new season Sept. 20. Teams of script surgeons directed by Jack Webb, now head of television production at Warner Bros. Studios, have made drastic repairs.

Departed are all but one of the private detectives. Also banished are the show's gimmicks: The hair-combing or trick-talking parking lot jockeys, the comedy gumshoe, even the pretty French telephone operator.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr., sole survivor of the major operation, completed Wednesday a scene with Joseph Schildkraut (Schildkraut in "77 Sunset Strip") and threaded his way over cables and around cameras to talk about it.

"It's part of the new regime here," Zimbalist said. "The idea is to bring the show closer to reality."

The show, a hit when it started, spawned a number of progeny which closely resembled its parent: "Hawaiian Eye," "Bourbon Street Beat," "Surfside Six," so similar that viewers sometimes wondered if they were not all using the same scripts with only the locals and character names changed. All of these expired.

Next season Zimbalist will still be playing Stuart Bailey, private detective, but his character will change and he'll even have new offices. No explanation will be offered about the disappearance of his former co-stars, Roger Smith and Edd Byrnes.

The series will be launched with a five-part story. "77 Sunset Strip" is an hour-long show. "If they show this one in theater," said Zimbalist, "it will be longer than 'Cleopatra.'"

The show will also have big name guest stars—some 30 in the five-part, including Ed and Keenan Wynn, Wally Cox and Luther Adler.

Zimbalist, a handsome, dark-haired man with a quiet manner, was known to have been unhappy about the show in previous seasons. Under contract to Warners, he now seems satisfied—if not exactly ecstatic—about his heavier role and the new format.

ABC's "Travels of Jamie McPheeters" had a setback recently when its producer, Robert Sparks, died of a heart attack. Danny Thomas has decided to be his own director on his 11-year-old CBS series. NBC has the National Education Association interested in its "Mr. Novak" series—naturally, because it is about a high school teacher. Bob Fuller gets a new name, a new horse and a new network when he switches from NBC's departing "Laramie"

MICROFILM OPERATION — Women employees sort hospital medical records and feed them into a machine which photographs them onto a 16 mm. microfilm strip. The developed microfilm can then be viewed by means of a projector and the storage problem for medical records is solved for hospitals. Women employees are now working two eight-hour shifts at the new Versailles plant. Also placed on microfilm are hospital X-rays.

FIRE ASSAY — Merle Strowmatt, manager of the Versailles plant, takes a fire assay on material from burned X-ray film to determine the silver content. He places a small amount of the gunpowder-like material into a small blast furnace and heat and chemicals flux away most of the impurities leaving a silver-lead alloy. Heating this alloy in a bone ash cupel removes the lead and only the silver remains. An equative formula lets personnel know how much silver can be reclaimed from a ton of burned X-ray film.

BUILDING GOING UP — By Nov. 1 Microfilm Foto-File, Inc., Versailles, expects to move into their new building shown above in an architect's conception. The 60x180 foot concrete block building will have a steel frame roof and provide a total of 10,800 square feet of business area. C. W. Dunnaway, Versailles, is the contractor. The plant is now operating in a steel building which will be converted to warehouse space.

EXPLAINS ASSAY OPERATION—Plant manager Merle Strowmatt explains a step in assaying burned X-ray film for silver content to Joe Thomas, (right), Versailles merchant who heads the Versailles Industrial Trust. This trust group started in 1956 and was able to secure an 8.2 acre tract for industrial development. The microfilming firm moved its St. Louis operation to Versailles in May.

New Efforts In Railway Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 156 local officials of the locomotive firemen's union who would have the final say on an agreement have been summoned to Washington next week in case there's a break in the railroad dispute.

"If there is to be an agreement this group has got to be here," said Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Wirtz did not indicate whether he had a solid proposal to submit to the union's general chairman but he told a news conference: "We are continuing to look for every possibility of an agreement."

So far there have been no outward signs of any leap forward in the face-to-face negotiations between railroad and union negotiators.

The talks, carried on under the eye of Wirtz, may determine by next week whether the carriers and the operating unions can settle their wrangle over jobs — or whether Congress will have to step in to avert a nationwide strike Aug. 29.

That's the date the railroads plan to institute the often-postponed work rules which would eliminate thousands of jobs, particularly those of firemen on diesel freight locomotives.

The City Council, will make the appointment at a later date.

The board held a lengthy discussion on various pumps that could be used on the new well on Spring Fork Creek and decided to purchase a 1,500 gallon-per-minute, oil lubricated turbine pump, as recommended by the engineering firm Black & Veatch, from the Wayne-Weston Co.

In a week-long test the new well, ironically named No. 13, has produced 1,500 gallons per minute with no appreciable drop in water level in the well. This is approximately three times the maximum for other wells, thus giving the Water Department the advantage of three wells for the price of one.

It was brought out at the meeting that several farmers in the area have complained that their springs have gone dry since the pumping tests were initiated. It was also noted that springs are not affected by water being drawn from more than a 50-foot depth, so the board decided to seek the assistance of the state geologist in determining the cause for the dry springs.

It was also noted that the Board of Public Works can in no way be held legally responsible for the dry springs.

The board agreed to accept a proposal from the Motorola Corp. for improvements in the two-way radio system. It was noted that under the present set-up, the mobile units only short distances apart cannot make direct contact, but have to relay messages through the base station at the Water Department offices.

Under the improved system, the antenna would be moved to the water tower, and under a new frequency make the base antenna a part of the car-to-car communication system, enabling the mobile units to communicate directly with each other at great distances.

It was brought out that last month the department drew some 9-million gallons of water from Spring Fork Lake, the first time water has been taken from the lake since last November. The frequent rains this summer have kept the water in Flat Creek flowing constantly, enabling the department to draw water from the creek most of the time.

The board discussed the possibility of constructing a new reservoir on Spring Fork Creek, but noted that money could not be made available before 1970. New wells in the Spring Fork Lake area were discussed, but no decision was made, and will probably not be made before a thorough study of the tri-annual record, due in a few weeks, is made.

'Walkie Talkie' Shot to Death

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Police say Robin R. Roberts, a Denver gambler, was shot to death because he lived up to his nickname, "Walkie Talkie."

Roberts' bullet-riddled body was found Wednesday in a shallow ditch west of Denver. He had been beaten severely and shot four times in the right side.

He had given information to police on several occasions, including once in a case that resulted in conviction of two underworld characters.

"He had a sharp wit and glib tongue," one patrolman said of Roberts, 33.

No arrests have been made in the case, police said.

Gassert Is Traded

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The champion NFL Green Bay Packers traded sophomore tackle Ron Gassert of Virginia to the Los Angeles Rams Thursday for a future draft choice.
